With the Scioto River falling rapidly after reaching a high stage of 22.22 feet at 7:45 a. m. Sunday for its peak reading, state and county officials began a check Monday to determine the extent of damage done by the rampaging stream and other waterways during the last several days. The 22.22-foot stage was the highest recorded at the West Main Street bridge in the last 27 years, going four feet higher than the mark reached in 1937's great flood that sent thousands of Ohio Valley residents fleeing northward.

The river became stationary at about 8 a. m. Sunday and during the late afternoon began to recede slowly. When the Main Street bridge gauge was checked at 8 a. m. Monday the recording was 17.87 feet. At noon the stage was 17.17 feet.

No rain has fallen since Saturday night, the district enjoying the second consecutive day of sunshine after about two weeks of overcast skies. The temperature fell to 37 degrees in Circleville at 7 a. m. Monday, and reports from rural districts were that water was found frozen in some places. Sunday's high reading was 54 degrees.

New Road Damaged

State highway officials declared that serious damage was done to the new road on Route 22 west of the city, the high water cutting into gravel embankments. High wind that drove waves of water against the embankments was blamed by some road officials as the principal cause for the damage. The extent of damage will not be determined until the water has subsided. It was feared for a while Sunday that the flood water might undermine the section of the road immediately west of the bridge.

The greatest damage done on the county's highway system was on Route 104 at the Westfall school where the river tore out a section of the Jackson Pike estimated at between 150 and 200 feet. State officials said that the road will be closed for the next six weeks while repairs are made.

Harry Griner, county engineer who had crews working throughout the week end, said that contrary to reports neither of the two covered bridges over Walnut Creek was in danger. A wash-out on the Walnut Creek Pike was temporarily repaired Saturday afternoon and a county crew was back on the

Tributaries Of Ohio Falling; Scores Flee Danger

By International News Service

Thousands of Ohio River valley residents, driven from their homes by the river's angry flood waters, today began the task of rehabilitating themselves even before the anticipated crest, expected late this afternoon, was reached.

The Ohio's swollen tributaries had already begun to recede, and the hope was generally expressed that the floods would be far less damaging than was previously feared.

Cessation of the rain which had fallen almost constantly for over a week was taken as a heartening sign. However, the forecast of cloudy weather with rain late tomorrow was greeted apprehensively, although it was believed the rivers would have flattened out enough by that time to carry off any reasonable rainfall without another rise in the river stage.

Dozens of southeastern Ohio towns, isolated by flash floods created by maddened streams, re-established contact with the rest of the state, although the highway patrol reported that about 80 roads were still blocked by high water. It was pointed out, however, that yesterday 110 roads—an all-time record number—were flooded.

Mercury Rise Expected

Temperatures only slightly above freezing prevailed throughout the state early this morning, but forecasters predicted that the thermometer would rise to the middle sixties by afternoon.

At Steubenville the Ohio River was reported receding after reaching a crest more than six feet above the 36-foot flood stage. At

EFFORT TO END PARK CAMPAIGN BEGINS AT ONCE

Twenty persons at a luncheon meeting in the American Hotel, Monday, voted unanimously to complete solicitation of funds for the purchase of a recreation and athletic grounds in the north end of the city.

Harry Bartholemew, chairman of the Elks Lodge Committee sponsoring the project, believes that by Friday the $500 necessary for the purchase of the grounds will have been raised. He asked the chairman of the committees soliciting the funds to get together immediately and start contacting their members to start solicitation.

The chairman of the committees are Dan McClain, W. E. Wallace, L. M. Mader, T. O. Gilliland and Senet Cryder. Representatives from the Monday Club, the Business and Professional Women's Club, and the American Legion Auxiliary, were present and pledged the wholehearted support of their organizations.

The land to be purchased is 13½ acres north of Hargus Creek between Court Street and the N. & W. railroad.

Some money has been collected but $500 is needed to complete the purchase.

VACCINE SENT TO RIVER AREA TO HALT DISEASE

COLUMBUS, April 22—As a precautionary measure against a possible epidemic, State Health Director R. H. Markwith today sent a shipment of typhoid vaccine to Cincinnati to inoculate residents of lowland areas driven from their homes by flood waters.

Markwith said the vaccine was requested by Dr. Carl Wilzbach. He added that there had been no outbreak as yet.

RUSSIA AGREES TO PACT TERMS

Moscow Says Neutral Goods Obtained From Britain Will Not Be Exported

LONDON, April 22—The Soviet Union will guarantee that no British or overseas neutral goods will be re-exported to Germany if Great Britain signs a new trade agreement with Russia, International News Service was informed today.

An authoritative Soviet source made clear that Russia is willing to make this concession, but for the present would decline to discuss reduction of her own exports to the Reich.

The Soviets thus met completely one of the two conditions laid down by the British government on Saturday for a new agreement. These preparations were described as follows:

1—Determination with absolute certainty that Russia would not re-export British goods to Germany.

2—An undertaking by Russia to restrict shipments of her own raw materials and manufactured goods to Germany.

These two conditions, British sources said, formed the only basis for an agreement "which takes into account the war situation."

With regard to the first item, the Russians seemed ready to go further than the British demand by including neutral goods imported into the U.S.S.R. by sea among the shipments which would be banned to Germany.

GERMANS WARN BALKAN STATES ABOUT BLOCKADE

BUDAPEST, April 22—A published German threat warning the Balkan states not to cooperate with the Allied blockade was prominently displayed today on the front-page of the semi-official Hungarian newspaper "Pest."

The German statement was a quotation from the Berliner Boersenzeitung, Nazi foreign office organ, protesting against the activities of British economic experts in the Balkans. It said:

"In case the Balkan economic campaign against Germany is launched, the Reich will use the same measures to counteract it as in the case of military aggression."

"Any Balkan state yielding to Allied intrigues faces a fate like Poland, Finland and Scandinavia." The German legation, meanwhile, made plans for a private showing of a motion picture of the Polish campaign. Many Hungarian army officers were invited.

BROTHERS FIGHT HITLER REVEALS CLUE TO MIGHTY ONE IS KILLED WEAPON OF WAR

PORTSMOUTH, April 22—Charles Boyd, 28-year-old farmer, was held in Portsmouth jail today for questioning in connection with the violent death Saturday night of his brother, William, 24.

Sheriff Earl Brandel was quoted as saying that Charles admitted striking William over the head with a rifle. The victim died of a neck fracture. The incident, Brandel said, occurred six miles north of Lucasville on route 112.

Coroner J. D. Rose said Boyd, father of four children, and William became involved in a fist fight first when they could not agree on how fast their automobile should be driven. Brandel said both men had been drinking.

Rose said an inquest would be held as soon as high waters subsided. The Boyd home in Dry Run is isolated from Portsmouth because of high waters. The coroner added that no charge would be filed until after the inquest.

M'NUTT TO SPEAK AT LIMA MAY 4, DURBIN REVEALS

COLUMBUS, April 22 — Democratic interest in the May 14 primary was revived somewhat today with the announcement that Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator and presidential aspirant, would speak at a meeting in Lima May 4.

The announcement was made by Francis W. Durbin, Allen County Democratic chairman and candidate for nomination as congressman-at-large. Durbin said McNutt and National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, Ohio Democracy's "favorite son" candidate for the presidential nomination, would be the speakers.

Previously it had been announced that Postmaster General James A. Farley was to speak at another Democratic rally in Cincinnati May 10. Both McNutt and Farley have been mentioned as presidential possibilities.

In Columbus, Charles H. Hubbell, Cleveland politician, submitted to Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert a draft for a proposed constitutional amendment that would extend the terms of elected state officials from two to four years.

EIGHT OHIOANS DIE IN TRAFFIC

Five Victims Of Autos; Three Pedestrians On City Streets

By International News Service

At least eight Ohioans were killed in weekend traffic accidents, a survey disclosed today. Five victims lost their lives in automobile mishaps and three while walking on city streets.

John Vechery, 60, was injured fatally in Cleveland when struck by an automobile and carried more than 100 feet before the driver was able to stop his car.

Benedict Chotkevys, 31, of Middleburg Heights, was charged with manslaughter in the hit-skip accident that took the life of Harry Aelinski, 35, in Berea.

Emerson Rocci, 21, was injured fatally on Route 43 near Canton when the automobile in which he was riding skidded and crashed (Continued on Page Two)

WATCHMAN SAVES THREE FROM DEATH IN WATER

HAMILTON, April 22—Ralph Peters, a watchman at the Ford Motor Co. plant, was credited today with saving the lives of three persons whose canoe capsized in the company reservoir.

He threw a life preserver to Ralph Burkhart, 22, and his sister, Betty, 18, two occupants of the canoe and with the assistance of Roy Dinwiddie, another company employee, pulled Stanley Burkhart, 15, to safety.

WHERE CRASH KILLED ELEVEN

Eleven young persons met instant death in these shattered cars.

SLAYTON, Minn., April 22—The worst automobile accident in Minnesota's history, a head-on collision between two speeding cars on a dangerous curve just south of here, today left 11 young persons dead. Six of those killed were high school students.

The two cars telescoped with such force that some of the bodies were thrown nearly 100 feet. The crash was heard for more than a mile. Two youths were injured so seriously that their recovery was considered doubtful.

The dead were identified as Everett Johnson,

18, Harold Huynman, 18, and Lawrence Tuynman, 20, all of Slayton; Irene Schwab, 17, and Rachel Fisher, 17, both of Fulda; Wayne Membel, 17, of Hadley; Carl Salk, 21, Gordon Meyer, 23, Leo Egge, 18, Hollis Luff, 21, and George Larsen, all of Jackson, Minn.

The injured were Elmer Meyer, 17, and Cecil Jensen, 18. They were taken to a Slayton hospital. Sheriff George Nelson said the cars were possibly travelling at 75 to 80 miles an hour, and that even the engine blocks were crushed.

NAMSOS REPORTED IN FLAMES

Another Raid On Stavanger Results In Much Damage, London Says; German Transports Enroute To Area

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

The contest between Germany and the Allies for possession of Norway was under way in dead earnest today—with two battles reported in progress.

British and German troops clashed in combat at Vaerdalsoeres, a strategic railway center about 45 miles northeast of German-occupied Trondheim.

At the same time, Norwegian forces, aided by British troops, battled the Germans on the southeastern Hamar-Elverum Front.

Denying that the Germans had occupied Lillehammer, the Norwegian legation in Stockholm said the Norwegians had captured Hamar and perhaps Elverum. Reports from border points failed to confirm this, however, and British authorities in London said they regarded reports claiming the capture of Hamar as at least "preliminary."

In a dispatch filed from the Swedish-Norwegian border, Barbro Alving, special International News Service correspondent, revealed that German bombers had reduced portions of Namsos to flames and ashes in raids against British forces which have landed there in a continuous stream.

At the same time, an Exchange Telegraph Dispatch from Gothenberg said 20 German transports escorted by at least four destroyers were sighted outside Vinga last night, apparently bound for Norway.

Stavanger Raided Again

London announced new aerial attacks on the German-held air-drome at Stavanger, claiming a number of German planes were destroyed, and a second attack on the German air base at Aarborg, Norway, in which "extensive damage" was caused.

Fears regarding the neutrality of Sweden arose once more after another German plane—the second in 24 hours—was shot down in flames while flying over Swedish territory. The German craft was attacked by a Swedish neutrality patrol plane.

Berlin, meanwhile, through the newspaper Zwölfuhrblatt, advanced the claim that 90 British naval units have been sunk, damaged or confiscated off the Norwegian coast during the last 12 days.

LONDON—Belgian authorities have discovered more than 50 German marine officers near Ostend and Zeebrugge, most of whom entered Belgium illegally, the London Daily Telegraph reported from Brussels today.

LONDON—British warplanes bombed and machine-gunned the Stavanger air-drome during the night, destroying a number of enemy aircraft, the air ministry announced today. All the British planes returned safely, the statement said. Earlier the air ministry claimed the Allies shot down at least 10 and possibly 13 German planes in fights over the Western Front.

LONDON—A fleet of 20 German transport ships escorted by at least four destroyers was sighted outside Vinga, near Gothenburg, Sweden, at 10 o'clock last night, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Gothenburg today.

PARIS—The next 48 hours may see "total" German aerial and naval warfare around Norway as a result of British air bombardments of Nazi bases at Stavanger, Christiansand and Aarborg, Denmark, a French air ministry spokesman said today.

FLOOD DAMAGES NEW ROAD WEST OF CIRCLEVILLE

Highway Officials Await Normal Flow Of Stream To Study Repairs

job Monday. Traffic was being maintained. A bridge at the C. B. Wise property on the Stoutsville Pike will need repairs, Griner said, but traffic is being maintained on that highway, too.

Numerous roads and bridges will have to be checked, the engineer declared, to determine how badly they are damaged.

B. & O. Service Resumes
N. & W. railroad men reported Monday that traffic has been resumed over the Baltimore & Ohio lines between Chillicothe and Cincinnati. The last B. & O. train to use the N. & W. tracks came through about noon Sunday.

Roads still closed in the district Monday included:
Route 762, the Mackey Ford road running from the Scioto Trail to Commercial Point.

Route 56, between Routes 104 and 22.

Route 104, south of Route 22, where the washout occurred.

Route 23, between Circleville and Chillicothe, traffic being detoured over Route 22 west to Route 277 and through Atlanta and Clarksburg.

Route 23 north of Circleville was opened Monday for traffic into Columbus.

Many families residing along the canal west of the city were forced to flee their homes Saturday afternoon and evening when the water from the river entered the structures. All made their way to safety without assistance, the river coming up slow enough to permit escapes.

The high water attracted numerous persons Sunday afternoon, Route 22 being almost impassable because of the heavy traffic. Motor boat owners had a field day skipping over the flood water in the Smith bottomland.

Charles Bass, venerable filling station operator, was given a thrill when the flood water swept against the embankment west of his station. A river observer for a good many years, Mr. Bass said Sunday afternoon that the river had not gone any higher since 8 a. m. He missed the actual peak only 15 minutes, the weather gauge recording the peak at 7:45 a. m.

Front during the last few months, it was said.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The description thus far available indicates that the mystery weapon is not a long-range gun of unprecedented destructive power, but rather a mechanical device or apparatus sufficiently small and mobile to be carried by advancing infantry. This recalled various rumors and reports that the Germans as well as other European military experts have long been working on a species of "death-ray" presumably able to immobilize artillery or even flood the engines of aircraft. Thus far, all such reported inventions have been dismissed as fanciful.)
On the basis so far described, the weapon itself would appear to be a "merciful" one.

It can be assumed, however, that any major German attack against the Maginot Line would be preceded by a hail of giant bombs, reinforced by hitherto unrevealed shells of highest explosive force.

In this connection, the one-ton aerial bomb being used in Norway is hailed here as a weapon of immensely destructive nature. It is carried in special planes known as JU-88's.

WORK RESUMES ON CITY STREETS; $3,000 NEEDED

After being delayed by heavy rains, work has been resumed on city streets. Five men are now working full time on city streets. Mill, Washington, Pickaway and Ohio Streets should be put in good condition in ten days or two weeks.

Nearly $3,000 will be needed to do the necessary repairing, the service department reported. Work on curbs and sidewalks will not start before May 1.

Melvin Kiger, George Colville and Donald Walker were ordained and installed as deacons in the First Presbyterian Church Sunday by the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey. Other deacons installed were Miss Florence Dunton, J. B. Stevenson and Howard Orr. Elders installed were E. O. Crites, Paul Gearhart and Theodore Steele. Clark Will, Lemuel Weldon and Robert Colville were installed as trustees.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Curl of 136 West Franklin Street announce the birth of a daughter Sunday at their home. The baby has been named Linda Belle.

Mrs. Lawrence Hoover and baby girl were removed from Berger Hospital, Sunday, to their home in Walnut Township.

Mrs. Anna Aronson, 125½ East Main Street, is a medical patient in Berger Hospital.

Mrs. Daniel Gilmore of 118 East Ohio Street, who is recovering after a major operation, was removed from Berger Hospital Sunday to her home.

Mrs. William Steele and baby girl were removed to their home, 215 West Union Street, Sunday, from Berger Hospital.

Mrs. Paul Betz, Lancaster Pike, underwent an emergency major operation Sunday night in University Hospital, Columbus. Her condition Monday was reported to be as good as can be expected.

Rothman's Store will be closed Tuesday and Wednesday because of Jewish holidays.

Harry Goeller, South Pickaway Street, entered Christian Holmes Hospital, Cincinnati, Monday for treatment preceding a major operation.

SUPREME COURT HITS ALABAMA PICKETING LAW

WASHINGTON, April 22—The Supreme Court today held unconstitutional the Alabama anti-picketing law in a decision regarded as one of the most important legal victories for organized labor in many years.

The high court said that the federal constitution prohibits states from enacting laws which prohibit pickets from inducing employees to remain on strike.

The court's opinion was delivered by Justice Frank Murphy. He ruled that the law was invalid on its face.

The controversy arose over conviction of Byron Thornhill, president of a Local No. 1974 of the Cressets Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

He was convicted on a charge of telling an employee of the Brown Wood preserving plant of Brownville, Ala., while on a picket line during a strike, that they were on a strike and "did not want anybody to go up there to work," he said.

He was fined $100.

20 WORKERS GO INTO FACTORY, DEFEYING UNION

AKRON, April 22—With police preventing any possible disorder, approximately 20 production workers passed a United Rubber Workers Union picket line today to enter the General Tire & Rubber Co. plant.

Meanwhile the executive board of the general local, URW, met with Sherman Dalrymple, international president of the CIO union, and David T. Roadley, U. S. Department of Labor conciliator, attempted to effect a settlement in a meeting with general executives.

The entrance of the handful of men was the only evidence of a "back to work" movement that was predicted in a CIO mass meeting in Goodyear Union hall last night.

Several hundred pickets gathered at the plant gates early today, but dispersed when the number entering the plant was found to be so small. Only a dozen men were left on the picket line which has been thinly held since the strike was called April 10.

Martins Ferry, across the river from Wheeling, W. Va., the river was still rising slowly, and a crest of 42.7 feet was expected. Flood stage there is also 36 feet.

Neither city, however, reported heavy damage from the six-foot-deep flood, and the muddy waters were expected to be more annoying than harmful, although more than 500 families were chased from their homes.

Marietta was not so fortunate. As the river stage climbed slowly upward to an expected 45 foot crest—flood stage is 39.6 feet—two feet of water crept into the business district, forcing merchants to move their stocks to higher floors. About 75 families were forced from their homes within the city limits, and Marietta College, its power plant flooded, closed until Wednesday.

The main street of Pomeroy also was under two feet of water, flooding basements and first floors of dozens of business establishments. There a crest of about 50 feet was expected, about six feet above the 44-foot flood stage.

Portsmouth felt quite safe behind its 62-foot flood wall, although normally flood stage there is 50 feet. Some slight damage was reported along the Scioto River banks there, as the swollen tributary outflanked the rear of the town.

Cincinnati anticipated a seven-foot flood when the river reached the anticipated 59-foot stage—far below the record of 79.99 feet marked up in the disastrous 1937 inundation.

Hocking Most Damaging
The Hocking River caused the most damage among the tributaries. The river reached 23 feet—six feet above flood stage—and blocked practically all roads into Athens. The Highway Patrol said that many of them would be re-opened by this afternoon.

The power plant at Nelsonville, flooded by the Hocking, expected to resume operations late today.

At Newark, where the Licking River forced 400 families to flee their homes, mass return to the vacated dwellings was underway coincident with the recession of the flood.

The Muskingum and Miami conservancy systems did yeoman service in checking the flow of the Muskingum and Miami rivers, and helped protect Marietta and Cincinnati from further damage.

17 AMERICANS IN SAFE TRIP FROM NORWAY REGION

STOCKHOLM, April 22—Worn out after an arduous journey, 17 American women, including five from the American legation at Oslo, were safe in the Swedish border town of Fjellhaes today.

They made the trip under escort of Lieut.-Col. Ole Hagen. Included in the party were eight children, the youngest of them Ann Ronhovde, 15-month-old daughter of Norwegian-born Professor A. G. Ronhovde of Rutgers University in New Jersey.

Two of the children were ill when they left Oslo, but survived the trip without further ill effects. The ladies of the legation who made the trip were Mrs. Raymond E. Cox of New York City, wife of the legation secretary; Mrs. T. O. Klath of Sioux City, Ia., wife of the secretary of the commercial department; Mrs. Austin R. Preston, of Buffalo, N. Y., wife of the American consul general, and Mrs. Easton T. Kelsey of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Mrs. Briggs A. Perkins of Berkeley, Calif., wives of the vice consuls.

They made the last leg of the journey from Lillehammer, where Mrs. J. Borden Harrison, 70-year-old American minister, was reported to have gone at great personal risk to bring the American women to safety.

In some interior districts of China, a son is not supposed to wear his glasses after the death of a parent. He is presumed to weep so copiously from grief that he cannot allow his glasses to interfere with the use of his handkerchief on his streaming eyes.

John Witherby, 41, died in Cincinnati after being struck by an automobile.

MORE STARS VIE IN ABC, BUT 3047 REMAINS ON TOP

DETROIT, April 22—The spotlight of the American Bowling Congress championships was focused today on the Solvay Bank team of Solvay, N. J., second place ruler in the five-man event at Cleveland last year with a 3,075 total.

A repeat performance by the easterners would send them to the top of the listings now headed by Monarch Beer, Chicago, with 3047.

Top-flight teams from Elizabeth, N. J., Omaha, Neb., Terre Haute, Ind., Syracuse, N. Y., and Canton, O., will also attempt to pass the Chicago team which has ruled the event for days.

JOSEPH H. STUMP DIES AT LAURELVILLE HOME

Joseph H. Stump, 76, died Sunday at 5 a. m. at his home near Laurelville after a lengthy illness. Mr. Stump was born and lived his entire life in the same home.

The funeral will be Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the Laurelville Methodist Church, burial to be in Green Summit Cemetery, Adelphi, by H. E. Defenbaugh and Sons.

Mr. Stump is survived by 10 children, Mrs. Margie Fetherolf, Wadsworth, O.; Mrs. Dovie Dorsey, Groveport; Mrs. Amy Garrett, Chillicothe; Joseph of Circleville R.F.D.; Carl of Laurelville R.F.D.; Byron of the home; Milton of Laurelville; Frank of Laurelville R.F.D.; Earl, a member of the U. HAYS DISCLOSES BUSINESS TREND AT POSTOFFICE

Postal receipts are $143.84 ahead of receipts of this month last year despite bad weather conditions, Postmaster A. Hulse Hays revealed Monday. Receipts for the first twenty days of April show an increase of $219.03 over those of April 20, 1939.

Receipts last year were the best in the history of the office, Hays said.

For the third quarter of the fiscal year 1939, receipts totaled $8,819.11. Receipts for the third quarter of the fiscal year 1940 are $8,723.92, $85.19 less than last year.

Exceptionally poor receipts in February and March caused the decrease over last year's third quarter figures, but with April's receipts ahead of those of the same time last year, Hays believes that the fiscal year of 1940 may be better than that of 1939.

If Congress passes the now pending postal bill removing the 10 percent penalty so that the postoffice may count 100 percent of its receipts instead of 90, the office would be only $2,151.27 short of a first class rating.

MRS. FANNIE BEAVERS, 70, DIES AT DAUGHTER'S HOME

Mrs. Fannie Beavers, 70, wife of Elza Beavers, died Monday at 3:45 a. m. at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ira Carpenter near Darbyville. She had been at her daughter's home since December when she suffered a stroke. Mrs. Beavers' home was in Scioto Township.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 1 p. m. at Ira Carpenter home with burial in Darbyville Cemetery, the Rev. Mr. Lawrence of Commercial Point officiating. Burial will be in Darbyville Cemetery by C. E. Hill.

Mrs. Beavers was born October 12, 1869, a daughter of George and Sarah Rush Burgett. She married Elza Beavers on December 22, 1888, her husband and two children, Mrs. Carpenter and Mrs. Anna McKinley of Orient surviving. Thomas J. Burgett of Orient, a member of the Pickaway County board of elections, is a brother.

Mrs. Beavers was a member of the Orient Methodist Church and of the Ladies' Aid of the church.

FINN STAR WINS EASY EDGE OVER INDIANA'S LASH

NEW ORLEANS, April 22—Taisto Maki of Finland today had a victory over Don Lash of Indiana to add to his laurels. Before 4,000 spectators, Maki yesterday outran Lash to win a three-mile race with a time of 14 minutes 10 4/5 seconds.

The time was well over Maki's record, 13:42.4, but the victory gave him partial revenge for his defeat last month at Madison Square Garden in New York, where Gregory Rice and Lash finished in that order ahead of him.

Two of the children were ill when they left Oslo, but survived the trip without further ill effects.

The ladies of the legation who made the trip were Mrs. Raymond E. Cox of New York City, wife of the legation secretary; Mrs. T. O. Klath of Sioux City, Ia., wife of the secretary of the commercial department; Mrs. Austin R. Preston of Buffalo, N. Y., wife of the American consul general, and Mrs. Easton T. Kelsey of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Mrs. Briggs A. Perkins of Berkeley, Calif., wives of the vice consuls.

They made the last leg of the journey from Lillehammer, where Mrs. J. Borden Harrison, 70-year-old American minister, was reported to have gone at great personal risk to bring the American women to safety.

John Witherby, 41, died in Cincinnati after being struck by an automobile.

MORE STARS VIE IN ABC, BUT 3047 REMAINS ON TOP

DETROIT, April 22—The spotlight of the American Bowling Congress championships was focused today on the Solvay Bank team of Solvay, N. J., second place ruler in the five-man event at Cleveland last year with a 3,075 total.

A repeat performance by the easterners would send them to the top of the listings now headed by Monarch Beer, Chicago, with 3047.

Top-flight teams from Elizabeth, N. J., Omaha, Neb., Terre Haute, Ind., Syracuse, N. Y., and Canton, O., will also attempt to pass the Chicago team which has ruled the event for days.

HAYS DISCLOSES BUSINESS TREND AT POSTOFFICE

Postal receipts are $143.84 ahead of receipts of this month last year despite bad weather conditions. Postmaster A. Hulse Hays revealed Monday. Receipts for the first twenty days of April show an increase of $219.03 over those of April 20, 1939.

Receipts last year were the best in the history of the office, Hays said.

For the third quarter of the fiscal year 1939, receipts totaled $8,819.11. Receipts for the third quarter of the fiscal year 1940 are $8,723.92, $85.19 less than last year.

Exceptionally poor receipts in February and March caused the decrease over last year's third quarter figures, but with April's receipts ahead of those of the same time last year, Hays believes that the fiscal year of 1940 may be better than that of 1939.

If Congress passes the now pending postal bill removing the 10 percent penalty so that the postoffice may count 100 percent of its receipts instead of 90, the office would be only $2,151.27 short of a first class rating.

MRS. FANNIE BEAVERS, 70, DIES AT DAUGHTER'S HOME

Mrs. Fannie Beavers, 70, wife of Elza Beavers, died Monday at 3:45 a. m. at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ira Carpenter near Darbyville. She had been at her daughter's home since December when she suffered a stroke. Mrs. Beavers' home was in Scioto Township.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 1 p. m. at Ira Carpenter home with burial in Darbyville Cemetery, the Rev. Mr. Lawrence of Commercial Point officiating. Burial will be in Darbyville Cemetery by C. E. Hill.

Mrs. Beavers was born October 12, 1869, a daughter of George and Sarah Rush Burgett. She married Elza Beavers on December 22, 1888, her husband and two children, Mrs. Carpenter and Mrs. Anna McKinley of Orient surviving. Thomas J. Burgett of Orient, a member of the Pickaway County board of elections, is a brother.

Mrs. Beavers was a member of the Orient Methodist Church and of the Ladies' Aid of the church.

FINN STAR WINS EASY EDGE OVER INDIANA'S LASH

NEW ORLEANS, April 22—Taisto Maki of Finland today had a victory over Don Lash of Indiana to add to his laurels. Before 4,000 spectators, Maki yesterday outran Lash to win a three-mile race with a time of 14 minutes 10 4/5 seconds.

The time was well over Maki's record, 13:42.4, but the victory gave him partial revenge for his defeat last month at Madison Square Garden in New York, where Gregory Rice and Lash finished in that order ahead of him.

REICHLEY CASE RECALLS DEATH OF STOREKEEPER

Walter Pleukharp Shooting Of Nine Years Ago
Remains Unsolved

SON LEADS IN SEARCH

Hocking 'Santa Claus'
Missing From Home
Over Month

As state and county authorities continue to express anxiety concerning the fate of Conrad H. (Coon) Reichley, venerable South Bloomingville "Santa Claus," so-named because of his flowing white beard, another unsolved Hocking County mystery is recalled by persons seeking Mr. Reichley.

It was almost nine years ago that Walter Pleukharp, 55, was shot fatally by bandits who entered his general store in South Bloomingville. Mr. Pleukharp, who was acquainted with persons in every south-central Ohio town and city, died in Cherrington Hospital, Logan, on June 8 without regaining consciousness.

This crime has gone unsolved although many persons have been questioned and numerous clues to the identity of his slayers have been advanced.

Shot in Head, Neck

Mr. Pleukharp always carried a large sum of money in his pockets and was known to carry a revolver wherever he went. He had always told law enforcement officials that any person who tried to rob him would have to beat him to the draw. Pleukharp and Otis Eveland, a neighbor and friend, were in the Pleukharp store the evening of June 3, 1931, when two men brandishing pistols entered. They ordered both men to put up their hands. Eveland did, but Pleukharp reached for his revolver, and was shot through the head and neck.

His money was stolen, the bandits escaping in a red Chevrolet roadster.

Whether there is any connection between the Pleukharp crime and the disappearance of Mr. Reichley is unknown, but Sheriff Joe Farbeam of Hocking County and other officers who have been called into the search for the aged man are not passing up any bets. They are checking every angle possible.

Son Leads Search

Mr. Reichley has not been seen since early in March and his son, S. A. Reichley, who is the state ranger at Old Man's Cave, has been spending much of his time traveling from one county to another asking law officers to help in the search.

Several persons, including some neighbors, have been questioned, but nothing tangible has been found about the missing man's whereabouts although he could be easily identified by his beard. Mr. Reichley is 77 years of age.

Authorities are wondering if his disappearance will go into the record as unsolved, just as has the Pleukharp murder.

WOMAN'S AGE 80, NOT 70

The age of Mrs. Emma J. Young of Darby Township, who died early Friday, should have been reported as 80 instead of 70. Mrs. Young was born in 1859. She is survived by nine children, the name of Guy, who resides at home, having been omitted.

HARDLY KNOW I HAVE A BACK SINCE VENDOL EASED MISERY

Columbus lady says she was seldom without dull, aching pains, and so stiff could barely stoop over. Feels just grand now.

No matter where you go here and in nearby towns, you are almost sure to find someone who has taken Vendol and will testify to the wonderful relief it has given, in many instances after years of suffering. This was the case of Mrs. Esther Farber of 228 Markison Ave., Columbus, Ohio, who gave a statement for publication as follows:

"I suffered from many outward symptoms but now I know they all come from being constipated and needing a good diuretic medicine for my kidneys. For the past few years I didn't enjoy a single meal, because more than likely I'd suffer soon afterwards with sourness, indigestion, gas, and heart fluttering. I was highly nervous too, and it seemed that I had to put up with spells of dizziness most every day. But worst of all was my back which sometimes ached almost unbearably, feeling as though it were about to break in two. I often felt so stiff in my muscles that I could barely stoop over.

"I had tried various remedies recommended for these troubles but it wasn't until I took Vendol that I found the relief I sought. I was really amazed when, after I'd taken only a few doses, my

One of the three prisoners who sawed out of the Ross County jail Friday was captured Saturday at the corner of Welch Avenue and High Street in Columbus. He was Ernest Carr, 30, of Bainbridge who was captured by Patrolman James King and placed in the city prison.

Carr was arrested January 17 by a Bainbridge posse for shooting with intent to kill Marshal Earl Edgington, of Bainbridge.

No trace of John Richards and Charles Richards, Eagle Mills brothers who broke jail with Carr, has been obtained, Sheriff Joseph Vincent said.

PHIL SMITH CAR STOLEN. FOUND ON KINGSTON PIKE

The automobile of Phil Smith, 121 East Union Street, was stolen from the Smith residence early Sunday and was found about noon Sunday, abandoned on the Kingston Pike. No information concerning the identity of the thief was obtained. Mr. Smith is vice-president of the Esmeralda Canning Company.

bowels began to move unusually thoroughly, pleasantly, and actively. Soon I was again eating anything that struck my fancy without suffering in any way afterwards. My nerves were just as quiet and calm as could be, the spells of dizziness seemed to leave me, and most wonderful of all, I don't know that I have a back now; that's how nicely those old aches have been relieved. Yes, it's a real pleasure to recommend medicine like Vendol to my friends and the public."

ALF LANDON AND KNOX ACTIVE IN PLANS OF G. O. P.

1936 Standard-Bearers To Help Draft Platform Ere
Convention Starts

DEVELOPMENTS ARE CITED

President Urges Democrats
To Name Liberals To Head
Ticket In 1940

WASHINGTON, April 22—High Republican party chieftains today propose to draft the G. O. P. platform for 1940 in advance of the Philadelphia convention, in order to escape the usual one-day-and-night basking over planks.

The 1936 G. O. P. standard-bearers, Alf M. Landon of Kansas, and Col. Frank Knox of Illinois, are leading a movement to have the Republican resolutions committee meet in Philadelphia at least a week before the convention. They believe this will enable the platform-drafters to draw up a carefully-phrased lucid, vote-getting document for presentation to the convention. In the past, both Republican and Democratic platforms have been drafted by dead-tired resolutions committees, working from 20 to 30 hours at a stretch.

Both Landon and Knox expected to be members of the resolutions committee, which explains their personal interest in getting an early on the G. O. P. platform.

Four Developments Cited
This novel move was disclosed amid a welter of weekend political developments, including:

1. President Roosevelt's demand that the Democratic party nominate a "liberal pair of candidates, running on a liberal and forward-looking platform." Speaking to young Democrats throughout the nation by radio, the President again ignored the third term issue.

2. Renewed demand by Attorney General Robert H. Jackson for the renomination of Mr. Roosevelt, after being introduced as the Democratic nominee in 1944 to another young Democratic audience by Sen. Josh Lee, Okla.

3. Declaration by WPA Commissioner F. C. Harrington that WPA workers "can vote as they please" because "the WPA is not in politics."

4. Announcement by Chairman Gillette (D) Ia., of the senate "slush fund" committee that he will ask for a $75,000 appropriation to finance inquiries into presidential and senatorial campaign expenditures. His committee is now investigating expenditures by the Thomas E. Dewey organization in the G. O. P. primaries in Wisconsin and Nebraska.

Leaders Okeh It
The proposal of Landon and Knox that the Republican platform committee meet prior to the Philadelphia convention was approved by G. O. P. leaders in the capital. Its purpose, as explained by one Republican leader, is:

"Usually, the resolutions committee holds hearings all of one day and then meets all night long to prepare a platform. It's a health-breaking job and the committee members wear themselves out to get the platform ready in time. It is far more sensible to have the committee meet in advance, hold hearings at length and then take its time in drafting the platform."

cloakrooms that now that Senator William King, veteran Utah anti-New Deal Democrat, has strong opposition. he will climb board the third term bandwagon. In his last campaign in 1934, King ran as an Administration supporter, but a few days after he was safely re-elected rejoined the anti camp. Running against him this year is Delbert Draper, liberal Salt Lake City lawyer. . . Since his big vote as a Dewey delegate, Wisconsin Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman, former Governor, has started a quiet boom to shelve Governor Julius H. Heil and grab the GOP nomination. National Republican chiefs would like to ditch Heil because of his proclivity for making impolitic statements. Wisconsin GOP county chairmen plan a statewide survey to demonstrate his unpopularity. . . Despite the many bitter barbs he hurled at Roosevelt, Senator Burt Wheeler has told intimates he would accept second place in Roosevelt runs again.

UNDER THE DOME

One of the most inspiring sights in our democratic government is to see the President of the United States address a joint session of Congress. These gatherings include not only the President and members of the House and Senate, but also Cabinet members, Supreme Court Justices, foreign diplomats, members of the President's family, plus social and political leaders—all seated in the House of Representatives.

But—some members of Congress heave a sign of relief when these sessions are adjourned. What they know, though others do not, is that the roof covering the House chamber is in danger of caving in some day and wiping out the nation's political leaders.

Furthermore, the roof of the Senate chamber is supported by similar materials, and architects have recommended that it be replaced.

THE CITIZENS TELEPHONE CO.

placed. Serious-minded Horace D. Rouzer, assistant architect of the Capitol, solemnly warned members of the Senate Appropriations Committee recently that "in some instances the pins should not be stressed over 12,000 pounds, but computations show stresses up to around 75,000 pound per square inch." He was referring to the roof on the Senate side of the Capitol. Somewhat similar testimony by David Lynn, Capitol architect, brought an investigation of the structures which may lead to extensive repairs.

Structural engineers have been retained to investigate the condition of the Senate and House roofs. Should the experts agree that the Senators and Congressmen sit in constant danger, a deficiency appropriation will be asked to carry out the proposed construction.

Fact is that about three years ago Thomas W. Marshall, leading structural engineer, recommended that modern fireproof roofs be constructed over both chambers. The roofs were so shaky, Marshall urged that the House and Senate should adjourn when there was a heavy covering of snow on the Capitol.

However, Senator Robert Taft didn't think much of the Marshall report. The roofs have been there for 80 years, he said "with snows and everything else that anybody could put on it." Also the cost of the construction was estimated at $585,000 by Marshall, and Bob Taft is economy-minded.

This crime has gone unsolved although many persons have been questioned and numerous clues to the identity of his slayers have been advanced.

Shot in Head, Neck

Mr. Pleukharp always carried a large sum of money in his pockets and was known to carry a revolver wherever he went. He had always told law enforcement officials that any person who tried to rob him would have to beat him to the draw. Pleukharp and Otis Eveland, a neighbor and friend, were in the Pleukharp store the evening of June 3, 1931, when two men brandishing pistols entered. They ordered both men to put up their hands. Eveland did, but Pleukharp reached for his revolver, and was shot through the head and neck.

His money was stolen, the bandits escaping in a red Chevrolet roadster.

Whether there is any connection between the Pleukharp crime and the disappearance of Mr. Reichley is unknown, but Sheriff Joe Farbeam of Hocking County and other officers who have been called into the search for the aged man are not passing up any bets. They are checking every angle possible.

Son Leads Search

Mr. Reichley has not been seen since early in March and his son, S. A. Reichley, who is the state ranger at Old Man's Cave, has been spending much of his time traveling from one county to another asking law officers to help in the search.

Several persons, including some neighbors, have been questioned, but nothing tangible has been found about the missing man's whereabouts although he could be easily identified by his beard. Mr. Reichley is 77 years of age.

Authorities are wondering if his disappearance will go into the record as unsolved, just as has the Pleukharp murder.

WOMAN'S AGE 80, NOT 70

The age of Mrs. Emma J. Young of Darby Township, who died early Friday, should have been reported as 80 instead of 70. Mrs. Young was born in 1859. She is survived by nine children, the name of Guy, who resides at home, having been omitted.

HARDLY KNOW I HAVE A BACK SINCE VENDOL EASED MISERY

Columbus lady says she was seldom without dull, aching pains, and so stiff could barely stoop over. Feels just grand now.

No matter where you go here and in nearby towns, you are almost sure to find someone who has taken Vendol and will testify to the wonderful relief it has given, in many instances after years of suffering. This was the case of Mrs. Esther Farber of 228 Markison Ave., Columbus, Ohio, who gave a statement for publication as follows:

"I suffered from many outward symptoms but now I know they all come from being constipated and needing a good diuretic medicine for my kidneys. For the past few years I didn't enjoy a single meal, because more than likely I'd suffer soon afterwards with sourness, indigestion, gas, and heart fluttering. I was highly nervous too, and it seemed that I had to put up with spells of dizziness most every day. But worst of all was my back which sometimes ached almost unbearably, feeling as though it were about to break in two. I often felt so stiff in my muscles that I could barely stoop over."

"I had tried various remedies recommended for these troubles but it wasn't until I took Vendol that I found the relief I sought. I was really amazed when, after I'd taken only a few doses, my

One of the three prisoners who saved out of the Ross County jail Friday was captured Saturday at the corner of Welch Avenue and High Street in Columbus. He was Ernest Carr, 30, of Bainbridge who was captured by Patrolman James King and placed in the city prison.

Carr was arrested January 17 by a Bainbridge posse for shooting with intent to kill Marshal Earl Edgington, of Bainbridge.

No trace of John Richards and Charles Richards, Eagle Mills brothers who broke jail with Carr, has been obtained, Sheriff Joseph Vincent said.

ALF LONDON AND KNOX ACTIVE IN PLANS OF G. O. P.

1936 Standard-Bearers To Help Draft Platform Ere
Convention Starts

DEVELOPMENTS ARE CITED

President Urges Democrats
To Name Liberals To Head
Ticket In 1940

WASHINGTON, April 22—High Republican party chiefs today propose to draft the G. O. P. platform for 1940 in advance of the Philadelphia convention, in order to escape the usual one day-and-night battling over planks.

The 1936 G. O. P. standard-bearers, Alf M. Landon of Kansas, and Col. Frank Knox of Illinois, are leading a movement to have the Republican resolutions committee meet in Philadelphia at least a week before the convention. They believe this will enable the platform-drafters to draw up a carefully-phrased lucid, vote-getting document for presentation to the convention. In the past, both Republican and Democratic platforms have been drafted by dead-tired resolutions committees, working from 20 to 30 hours at a stretch.

Both Landon and Knox expected to be members of the resolutions committee, which explains their personal interest in getting an early on the G. O. P. platform.

Four Developments Cited
This novel move was disclosed amid a welter of weekend political developments, including:

1. President Roosevelt's demand that the Democratic party nominate a "liberal pair of candidates, running on a liberal and forward-looking platform." Speaking to young Democrats throughout the nation by radio, the President again ignored the third term issue.

2. Renewed demand by Attorney General Robert H. Jackson for the renomination of Mr. Roosevelt, after being introduced as the Democratic nominee in 1944 to another young Democratic audience by Sen. Josh Lee, Okla.

3. Declaration by WPA Commissioner F. C. Harrington that WPA workers "can vote as they please" because "the WPA is not in politics."

4. Announcement by Chairman Gillette (D) Ia., of the senate "slush fund" committee that he will ask for a $75,000 appropriation to finance inquiries into presidential and senatorial campaign expenditures. His committee is now investigating expenditures by the Thomas E. Dewey organization in the G. O. P. primaries in Wisconsin and Nebraska.

Leaders Okeh It

The proposal of Landon and Knox that the Republican platform committee meet prior to the Philadelphia convention was approved by G. O. P. leaders in the capital. Its purpose, as explained by one Republican leader, is:

cloudrooms that now that Senator William King, veteran Utah anti-New Deal Democrat, has strong opposition, he will climb board the third term bandwagon. In his last campaign in 1934, King ran as an Administration supporter, but a few days after he was safely re-elected rejoined the anti camp. Running against him this year is Delbert Draper, liberal Salt Lake City lawyer. Since his big vote as a Dewey delegate, Wisconsin Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman, former Governor, has started a quiet boom to shelve Governor Julius Hell and grab the GOP nomination. National Republican chiefs would like to ditch Hell because of his proclivity for making impolitic statements. Wisconsin GOP county chairmen plan a statewide survey to demonstrate his unpopularity. . . . Despite the many bitter barbs he hurled at Roosevelt, Senator Burt Wheeler has told intimates he would accept second place is Roosevelt runs again.

UNDER THE DOME

One of the most inspiring sights in our democratic government is to see the President of the United States address a joint session of Congress. These gatherings include not only the President and members of the House and Senate, but also Cabinet members, Supreme Court Justices, foreign diplomats, members of the President's family, plus social and political leaders—all seated in the House of Representatives.

But—some members of Congress have a sign of relief when these sessions are adjourned. What they know, though others do not, is that the roof covering the House chamber is in danger of caving in some day and wiping out the nation's political leaders.

mittes holds hearings all of one day and then meets all night long to prepare a platform. It's a health-breaking job and the committee members wear themselves out to get the platform ready in time. It is far more sensible to have the committee meet in advance, hold hearings at length and then take its time in drafting the platform."

placed.

Serious-minded Horace D. Rouser, assistant architect of the Capitol, solemnly warned members of the Senate Appropriations Committee recently that "in some instances the pines should not be stressed over 12,000 pounds, but computations show stresses up to around 75,000 pound per square inch." He was referring to the roof on the Senate side of the Capitol.

Somewhat similar testimony by David Lynn, Capitol architect, brought an investigation of the structures which may lead to extensive repairs.

Structural engineers have been retained to investigate the condition of the Senate and House roofs. Should the experts agree that the Senators and Congressmen sit in constant danger, a deficiency appropriation will be asked to carry out the proposed construction.

Fact is that about three years ago Thomas W. Marshall, leading structural engineer, recommended that modern fireproof roofs be constructed over both chambers. The roofs were so shaky, Marshall urged that the House and Senate should adjourn when there was a heavy covering of snow on the Capitol.

However, Senator Robert Taft didn't think much of the Marshall report. The roofs have been there for 80 years, he said "with snows and everything else that anybody could put on it." Also the cost of the construction was estimated at $585,000 by Marshall, and Bob Taft is economy-minded.

BETTER MOTOR FUEL

THERE has been a revolution in gasoline motors since they were first used to propel horseless carriages, but it has been a slow process. The tempo, however, is speeding up. Automobilers may have noticed that their engines have been getting smaller and lighter, even while growing steadily more powerful. This has been made possible by the rapid improvement of the fuel as well as the motors.

The effectiveness of motor gasoline is reckoned in "octanes", which are steadily rising. The combustible power of regular grade gasoline today is about 75 octane rating. Dr. Gustav Egloff, a Chicago research expert on motor fuel, is said to have developed a gasoline of 125 octane rating, which has twice the available power of present gas.

This would be grand for motorists, if the wonder-fuel didn't cost $50 a gallon to produce. But just be patient. It isn't long since the cost was $3,600 a gallon.
The chemists hope to bring it down soon somewhere near the present price levels.

When motors are using such fuel they can be made considerably smaller without loss of power. And then they can be placed almost anywhere around the car.
The result may be a marked change in body design.

PUBLIC HEALTH LEADERS

THERE has always been rivalry among the growing cities of the United States—for population, for height of buildings, for number of conventions per year, and so on. Lately there has been less emphasis on such things and more on traffic, safety, fire prevention, home ownership, and other matters beneficial to the whole population.

The winners of the 1939 city health conservation contest, sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce and the American Public Health Association, were announced the other day. They were Milwaukee, Wis., New Haven, Hartford and Greenwich, Conn., and Plainfield and Englewood, N. J. Winning rural centers were Fayette County, Ky., Lauderdale, County, Miss., Union County, S. D., St.
Mary's Parish, La., and Wasco County,
Ore. These are not necessarily the healthiest communities in the United States.
They are winners because they are meeting their particular health problems in a competent manner.

They are cited for "safeguarding water supplies, furnishing adequate sewage disposal, reduction of infant and maternal deaths, combating tuberculosis and syphilis, prevention of communicable diseases, insurance of healthy children, and so on. The best part of it is that public health is increasingly a public concern everywhere, not only in the winning cities and counties.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

NEWS IS all war news, in one way or another.

President Roosevelt has been making a big clean-up in the pre-national convention primaries.
That generally is interpreted as an American "don't change horses in mid-stream" complex—war being the stream that we shouldn't change horses in the middle of.

If F. D. R. is drafted again the assumption is that the war's status next November will be largely decisive as to the election outcome.
It's been suggested that Herr Hitler preferred not to launch a barricade until after our election's over, being anxious to see, in advance, what Yankee reaction looks like toward European war conditions. But just because Adolf did wait to wait, it's sensed that the Allies were getting ready to call his head by hurrying him. It's taken for granted that he realized it, too; therefore tore loose in Scandinavia sooner than he originally intended, with a view of upsetting his foes' calculations. He succeeded, all right.

However, it all goes to show how the war mixes itself into our politics.

CONGRESS IS BOTHERED

The Scandinavian outbreak immediately started an outcry to the effect that congress ought not to adjourn while that row still is progressing. Adjournment had been expected by the end of May or mid-June, but the Scandinavian muss may spin matters out indefinitely.

The administration doesn't like this. It's notion is that it can do its own managing within reason, if things get hopelessly out of hand, an extra congressional session can be called any time.

Such senators as don't come up for re-election this year and such representatives as are pretty sure of being re-elected are willing enough to have the session go the limit. But the lawmakers who have fight on their hands want to get home to do some campaigning.

So it follows that congress is all by the ears, due to the war in Europe.

Well, what has the last municipal election in Shanghai, China, to do with the complication?

A plenty, from Uncle Sam's standpoint, believe me.

SITUATION IN SHANGHAI
Shanghai is the trade gateway

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

"LEVEL HEAD" URGED

WASHINGTON—A group of farm leaders went to the White House to urge Roosevelt to support the Jones Bill, which would cut interest rates on government farm loans. And while they got the President's support, they also got an earful on another subject—why the U. S. will NOT get involved in the European war.

The discussion began when one of the farmers asked Roosevelt whether propaganda and the loss of foreign markets would affect U. S. neutrality. This brought an emphatic negative from the President.

"I don't think the American people will lose their heads to the extent of being drawn into the European conflict," he said in effect. "It is true that the emotions of people can be quickly aroused, but reason and logic always triumph in the end.
That's why our democratic form of government has survived so long.

"Take, for example, the arms embargo fight. There was a lot of talk from certain elements during that controversy, that if we lifted the embargo it would drag us into the war. Well, all that talk has died down and you don't hear it any more.
There was no truth in it and it evaporated.

"The same happened during the debate over extending the reciprocal trade treaties. There was a lot of unfounded talk then, but it has all blown over unless political opportunists inject the issue into this year's campaign."

"What about the Nazi invasion of Denmark and Norway?" asked another of the farm visitors. "Will that endanger our neutrality?"

Again Roosevelt shook his head. "As long," he replied, "as we keep a level head, our feet on the ground and maintain a liberal government, we have nothing to worry about."

RED CROSS DELAYED

The war is all over in Finland, but that country still is having hard luck, this time as a result of the war in Norway. For the U. S. neutrality act now is holding up much needed Red Cross supplies to Finland.

When the Nazis invaded Norway, two American vessels—the Mormacstar and Mormactide—were on the high seas with Red Cross supplies for Finland. Then suddenly Roosevelt extended the combat zone, and the two vessels had to turn back.

The relief materials included hospital tents, warm clothing, layettes, surgical dressings, X-ray machines, and other hospital and medical supplies, some of them the hand-made products of Red Cross volunteer units throughout the country.

The material is desperately needed by the Finnish people, but the Red Cross knows of no way to deliver it.

Poland has been in a similar predicament, but now Red Cross material is getting through in large quantities—six months after the first efforts were made.
Delay was caused principally by Nazis, who emphatically denied any need for outside assistance.

Finally the Red Cross received written guarantees that none of the material will be claimed by German authorities, and that no objection will be raised to aiding Jews as well as Gentiles.

Non-Combatants Victims In This "Nerve War"

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SOME troublesome conditions with which we had to deal among the soldiers in the last war were the neuroses that developed. Thousands of men had nervous systems that just couldn't stand the strain.
"Shell shock" was the name given to one form of war neurosis.

A soldier would be for a time in the midst of exploding shells, and though never hit by a missile, he would become dazed, tremulous and confused, sometimes developing behavior irregularities.

are in no way directly involved in the war abroad.

Less fortunate than we are civilians in foreign countries who are exposed to the possibility of (1) air-concussion, a form of shell shock, and (2) suffocation trauma. Air-concussion, from proximity to exploding bombs, may initiate every form of hysteria, anxiety, psychosis and malingering; in this war more so because the explosives are so much more powerful. Suffocation trauma is relatively uncommon but there is, as might easily be imagined, a psychological result which comes from being buried for a while in debris.

The civilian in a nation at war,

Canadians are already dealing with such conditions in their own civil population. On the American side they are not so obvious but we should keep them in mind and remember when we are talking to our friends that the strain of the situation can induce either a mild hysteria or a mild anxiety neurosis.

WHO IS VULNERABLE

VULNERABILITY has a telling influence on the bidding of hands. Weighing its prob-players can often be the decisive guide in figuring out their likely holdings. After doing that, you frequently must consult the vulnerability factor again in order to decide which course you prefer to take, especially when it involves the possibility of one side or the other playing the hand at a sacrifice contract in order to reduce the score made by its opponents.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

I CHANGED quickly into my own clothes, which were still a trifle damp, but not enough to do me any harm, I hoped. The barge was being made fast to the landing with the mooring ropes.

The little cook was nervous.
"Mebbe you oughtn't to go. Mebbe
I oughtn't to let you," he said.

"I'll take care of myself," I assured him. I tucked the gun, barrel down, into my lower right vest pocket and held my coat tightly over it with my elbow. It was well hidden. Of course, if I had to use that arm for anything else in the next few minutes . . .

I didn't let my mind dwell on the possibilities of disaster.

The big man I was determined to capture for the police was waiting for me by the gangplank, although which the hand trucks already were rolling. Pete stood there arguing. They felt silent when I approached, and I wondered if Pete had been trying to persuade Bill to let me go, telling him that they had me completely fooled.

"You've got to hurry," Pete informed me. "There ain't as many potatoes here as we thought. I been telling Bill he'd better just go to the top of the levee and point out the road to you, then come right back."

"He'll get lost in this fog," big Bill growled. "Don't worry, I'll get back quick. And it won't hurt you to hold this barge ten minutes."

I wondered why Bill wanted to stay with the barge, now I knew that he was not a member of the crew. Perhaps, I told myself, he wanted to catch an early morning steamer out of San Francisco. If his plan was to get out of the country, my plan to detain him must not fail!

We followed the hand trucks ashore and started up a steep path bordered by bushes whose outlines I saw dimly as the moon began to break through the fog.

"You lead and I'll follow," I told Bill.

He agreed, and I didn't see how I could be in any great danger as long as I could keep my eyes on him. I kept the revolver pressed tightly under my coat. I didn't want to withdraw it yet, for fear he might suddenly turn around. I wanted to get him as far from the boat as possible before I stuck it into his ribs.

We walked a couple of hundred yards. The farmhouse was at considerable distance, apparently. I saw no lights. I grew uneasy. We reached a road, but there was no sign of Belzer or an automobile. If Bill was deliberately leading me to a deserted spot . . .

Bill stopped. "That's funny," he remarked. "I hear someone ahead of us, but the house is off to our right."

I listened. A sound like the rumbling of an automobile engine came out of the fog close at hand, then stopped, as though it had been shut off.

"We're stuck," said Belzer, just around the turn ahead of us, "but it can't be far. We'll walk." A car door slammed. "Hang that guy, Strickland, anyway! Why didn't he pick a decent road for us?"

"He wouldn't know the road," a girl's voice replied.

I was so startled by that voice that I didn't notice that William Calla had turned around. He leaped, and before I could grab my arms in his vise-like grip. The revolver fell to the ground.

"So, I was walking into a trap, was I?" snarled Calla. He gave me a vicious shove backward. I tripped and fell, and heard him crashing through the brush.

"This way!" I shouted to my friends, and staggered to my feet.
A flashlight came flaring through the fog, but Belzer was too late. Calla had regained the trail. His footsteps already were muffled by distance. He was nearly back to the levee.

"Quick!" I told Belzer. "My gun fell here on the ground. We've got to stop him!"

"Butch! Who is it?" He was whipping the flashlight beam over the trail. I found the gun.

"No time to explain. I—" The light touched the girl, who had come up behind Belzer, panting but unafraid. "Louise—I mean, Miss Markham, what are you doing here? This is dangerous. That man probably is armed."

"Then please don't go after him!"

"Stay in the car," Belzer ordered. "Butch and I'll stop him."
He started along the trail on the run. I hesitated only a moment, but Louise had a flashlight of her own and was turning obediently back to the car. I followed Belzer, marveling at his power over women.

We reached the top of the levee together. I grasped his arm as I saw the lights of the barge drawing away. "Too late," I said. "He's on that boat."

Belzer fired his revolver into the air and shouted "Stop!"

A bullet from the barge struck the ground in front of us and ricocheted off with a long whine.
Belzer snapped off his flashlight.
"That guy means business," he said.

"We can't fire on the boat," I told him. "The crew isn't at fault."
"Well, I'm afraid our little adventure is at an end. Who was your friend?"

"His name is William Calla, bootlegger, living at 2 Cleaves street. He's the fellow who kidnaped me the night Alfred was killed. He's also a dope peddler."

Belzer whistled. "You've been learning things! Where's that farmhouse? We'll put the police on his trail."

"No police boat could catch that barge now. 'We're better than half way to San Francisco.'"

"You under-rate our police boats.
Anyway, what's the matter with the San Francisco harbor police?"

"We found the farmhouse. Everyone was asleep, of course. That was why I had seen no lights. The farmer stuck his head out an upstairs window. He was sleepy, but remarkably obliging. Two minutes later Belzer was talking to his editor. Not until he was sure his story would make the last edition did he call the police."

As we walked back toward the stalled car I asked him, "What in the world was the idea of bringing Louise Markham out here?"

"I didn't bring her. She brought me. I told you I'd get someone with a good car."

"But a girl—"

"Say, she's got real nerve, that girl has."

We heard the automobile engine running, surging as though Louise were rocking the car back and forth in the deep rut into which it had sunk.

That was exactly what she was doing. She extricated it in triumph just as we arrived. "Next time," she told Belzer, "I'll drive all the way." She turned to me. "After we left the pavement he insisted driving these roads was a job for a man. What a man!"

She was laughing, but I was uncomfortable. I remembered her telephone call in the middle of the night, when Muriel Benson had answered the phone, from my room.

"Miss Markham, about that telephone call—I want to explain—"

"Why, Bill!" her voice softened.
"Did you think I ever would doubt you?"

BETTER MOTOR FUEL

THERE has been a revolution in gasoline motors since they were first used to propel horseless carriages, but it has been a slow process. The tempo, however, is speeding up. Automobils may have noticed that their engines have been getting smaller and lighter, even while growing steadily more powerful. This has been made possible by the rapid improvement of the fuel as well as the motors.

The effectiveness of motor gasoline is reckoned in "octanes", which are steadily rising. The combustible power of regular grade gasoline today is about 75 octane rating. Dr. Gustav Egloff, a Chicago research expert on motor fuel, is said to have developed a gasoline of 125 octane rating, which has twice the available power of present gas.

This would be grand for motorists, if the wonder-fuel didn't cost $50 a gallon to produce. But just be patient. It isn't long since the cost was $3,600 a gallon. The chemists hope to bring it down soon somewhere near the present price levels.

When motors are using such fuel they can be made considerably smaller without loss of power. And then they can be placed almost anywhere around the car. The result may be a marked change in body design.

PUBLIC HEALTH LEADERS

THERE has always been rivalry among the growing cities of the United States—for population, for height of buildings, for number of conventions per year, and so on. Lately there has been less emphasis on such things and more on traffic, safety, fire prevention, home ownership, and other matters beneficial to the whole population.

The winners of the 1939 city health conservation contest, sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce and the American Public Health Association, were announced the other day. They were Milwaukee, Wis., New Haven, Hartford and Greenwich, Conn., and Plainfield and Englewood, N. J. Winning rural centers were Fayette County, Ky., Lauderdale County, Miss., Union County, S. D., St. Mary's Parish, La., and Wasco County, Ore. These are not necessarily the healthiest communities in the United States. They are winners because they are meeting their particular health problems in a competent manner.

They are cited for "safeguarding water supplies, furnishing adequate sewage disposal, reduction of infant and maternal deaths, combating tuberculosis and syphilis, prevention of communicable diseases, insurance of healthy children, and so on. The best part of it is that public health is increasingly a public concern everywhere, not only in the winning cities and counties.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

NEWS IS all war news, in one way or another.

President Roosevelt has been making a big clean-up in the pre-national convention primaries. That generally is interpreted as an American "don't change horses in mid-stream" complex—war being the stream that we shouldn't change horses in the middle of.

If F. D. R. is drafted again the assumption is that the war's status next November will be largely decisive as to the election outcome. It's been suggested that Herr Hitler preferred not to launch a blitzkrieg until after our election's over, being anxious to see, in advance, what Yankee reaction looks like toward European war conditions. But just because Adolf did wait to wait, it's sensed that the Allies were getting ready to call his head by hurrying him. It's taken for granted that he realized it, too; therefore those in Scandinavia sooner than he originally intended, with a view of upsetting his foe's calculations. He succeeded, all right.

However, it all goes to show how the war mixes itself into our politics.

CONGRESS IS BOTHERED

The Scandinavian outbreak immediately started an outcry to the effect that congress ought not to adjourn while that row still is progressing. Adjournment had been expected by the end of May or mid-June, but the Scandinavian muck may spin matters out indefinitely.

The administration doesn't like this idea. It's notion is that it can do its own managing within reason, it things get hopelessly out of hand, an extra congressional session can be called any time.

Such senators as don't come up for re-election this year and such representatives as are pretty sure of being re-elected are willing enough to have the session go the limit. But the lawmakers who have fought on their hands want to get home to do some campaigning.

So it follows that congress is all by the ears, due to the war in Europe.

Well, what has the last municipal election in Shanghai, China, to do with the complication?

A plenty, from Uncle Sam's standpoint, believe me.

Shanghai is the trade gateway

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

"LEVEL HEAD" URGED

WASHINGTON—A group of farm leaders went to the White House to urge Roosevelt to support the Jones Bill, which would cut interest rates on government farm loans. And while they got the President's support, they also got an earful on another subject—why the U. S. will NOT get involved in the European war.

The discussion began when one of the farmers asked Roosevelt whether propaganda and the loss of foreign markets would affect U. S. neutrality. This brought an emphatic negative from the President.

"I don't think the American people will lose their heads to the extent of being drawn into the European conflict," he said in effect. "It is true that the emotions of people can be quickly aroused, but reason and logic always triumph in the end. That's why our democratic form of government has survived so long."

"Take, for example, the arms embargo fight. There was a lot of talk from certain elements during that controversy, that if we lifted the embargo it would drag us into the war. Well, all that talk has died down and you don't hear it any more. There was no truth in it and it evaporated."

"The same happened during the debate over extending the reciprocal trade treaties. There was a lot of unfounded talk then, but it has all blown over unless political opportunists inject the issue into this year's campaign."

"What about the Nazi invasion of Denmark and Norway?" asked another of the farm visitors. "Will that endanger our neutrality?"

Again Roosevelt shook his head. "As long," he replied, "as we keep a level head, our feet on the ground and maintain a liberal government, we have nothing to worry about."

RED CROSS DELAYED

The war is all over in Finland, but that country still is having hard luck, this time as a result of the war in Norway. For the U. S. neutrality act now is holding up much needed Red Cross supplies to Finland.

When the Nazis invaded Norway, two American vessels—the Mormacstar and Mormactide—were on the high seas with Red Cross supplies for Finland. Then suddenly Roosevelt extended the combat zone, and the two vessels had to turn back.

The relief materials included hospital tents, warm clothing, layettes, surgical dressings, X-ray machines, and other hospital and medical supplies, some of them the hand-made products of Red Cross volunteer units throughout the country.

The material is desperately needed by the Finnish people, but the Red Cross knows of no way to deliver it.

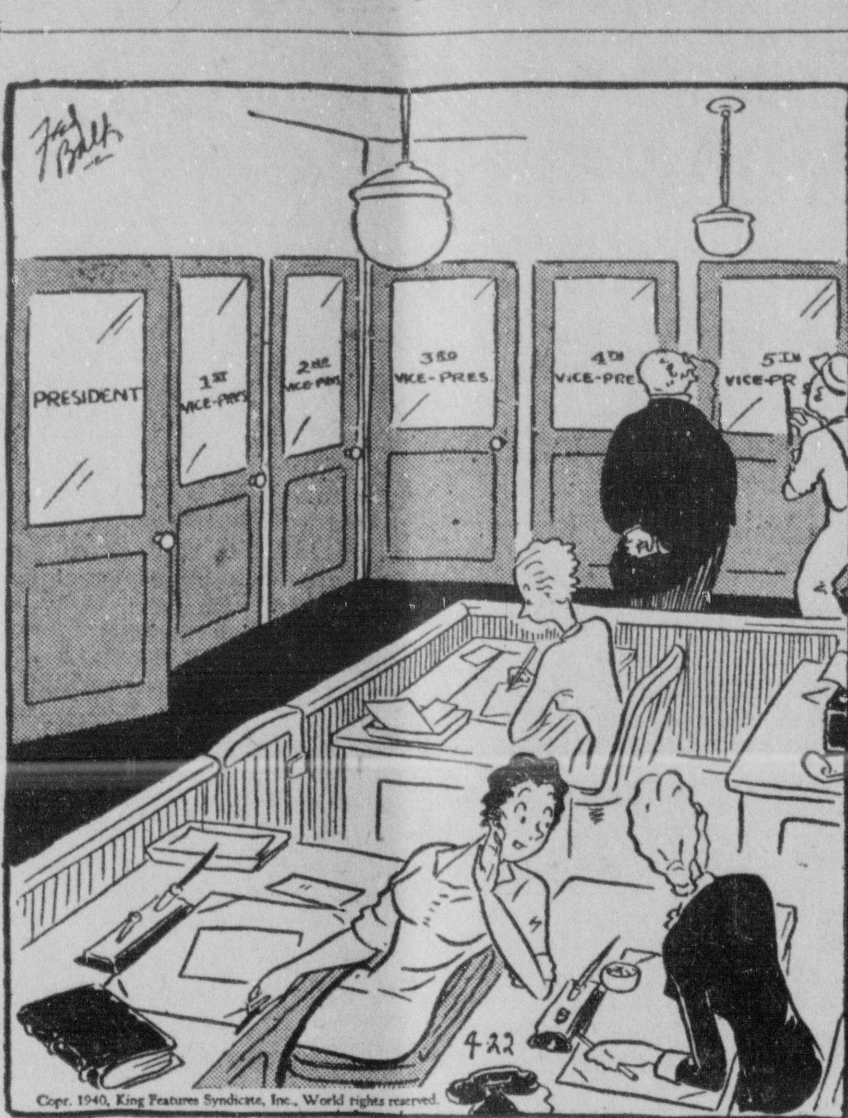

Poland has been in a similar predicament, but now Red Cross material is getting through in large quantities—six months after the first efforts were made. Delay was caused principally by Nazis, who emphatically denied any need for outside assistance.

Finally the Red Cross received written guarantees that none of the material will be claimed by German authorities, and that no objection will be raised to aiding Jews as well as Gentiles.

DIET AND HEALTH

Non-Combatants Victims In This "Nerve War"

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SOME troublesome conditions with which we had to deal among the soldiers in the last war were the neuroses that developed. Thousands of men had nervous systems that just couldn't stand the strain. "Shell shock" was the name given to one form of war neurosis.

A soldier would be for a time in the midst of exploding shells, and though never hit by a missile, he would become dazed, tremulous and confused, sometimes developing behavior irregularities.

Duplicated in U. S.

Some of the foreign medical journals are reporting cases of neuroses in non-combatants, and I find as I read of them that I seem to see them duplicated in some of my friends in the United States who are in no way directly involved in the war abroad.

Less fortunate than we are civilians in foreign countries who are exposed to the possibility of (1) air concussion, a form of shell shock, and (2) suffocation trauma. Air concussion, from proximity to exploding bombs, may initiate every form of hysteria, anxiety, psychosis and malingering; in this war more so because the explosives are so much more powerful. Suffocation trauma is relatively uncommon but there is, as might easily be imagined, a psychological result which comes from being buried for a while in debris.

The civilian in a nation at war,

asides from the possibility of these physical accidents, may be exposed to a mental conflict from the following dangers: (1) He may fight. (2) He may take to flight (this often causes more sheer terror than facing bullets). (3) He may dramatize his condition. (4) He may do nothing but feel.

The two last possibilities are the ones which seem to me to be the real possibilities in our own civil population. Dramatizing the condition includes bombastic speeches about what one should do, imaginary dramatization of pain, fear, fatigue, helplessness and hunger. It is a form of hysteria.

The man or woman who does nothing but feel may enter into a state of anxiety neurosis. It may result in a serious nervous breakdown. It was not so much the fighting that men had to do in the trenches, as the anxiety of waiting, inactivity and restriction which brought on some neuroses.

Canadians are already dealing with such conditions in their own civil population. On the American side they are not so obvious but we should keep them in mind and remember when we are talking to our friends that the strain of the situation can induce either a mild hysteria or a mild anxiety neurosis.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

VULNERABILITY has a telling influence on the bidding of many hands. Weighing its probable effect on the other three players can often be the decisive factor in figuring out their likely holdings. After doing that, you frequently must consult the vulnerability factor again in order to decide which course you prefer to take, especially when it involves the possibility of one side or the other playing the hand at a sacrifice contract in order to reduce the score made by its opponents.

and you, as South, hold either of the two hands given above. Your action would be greatly influenced by the vulnerability situation. Your partner might have shaded his opening third-hand bid appreciably when not vulnerable, especially against vulnerable opponents, whereas he probably had a good sound opening when vulnerable, and the same factors influenced your opponents in reverse fashion.

A consensus of opinion of a dozen fine players has been gathered on their preferred next action with these hands.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

I CHANGED quickly into my own clothes, which were still a trifle damp, but not enough to do me any harm, I hoped. The barge was being made fast to the landing with the mooring ropes.

The little cook was nervous. "Mebbe you oughtn't to go, Mebbe I oughtn't to let you," he said.

"I'll take care of myself," I assured him. I tucked the gun, barrel down, into my lower right vest pocket and held my coat tightly over it with my elbow. It was well hidden. Of course, if I had to use that arm for anything else in the next few minutes . . .

I didn't let my mind dwell on the possibilities of disaster.

The big man I was determined to capture for the police was waiting for me by the gangplank, across which the hand trucks already were rolling. Pete stood there arguing. They fell silent when I approached, and I wondered if Pete had been trying to persuade Bill to let me go, telling him that they had me completely fooled.

"You've got to hurry," Pete informed me. "There ain't as many potatoes here as we thought. I been telling Bill he'd better just go to the top of the levee and point out the road to you, then come right back."

"He'll get lost in this fog," big Bill growled. "Don't worry, I'll get back quick. And it won't hurt you to hold this barge ten minutes."

I wondered why Bill wanted to stay with the barge, now I knew that he was not a member of the crew. Perhaps, I told myself, he wanted to catch an early morning steamer out of San Francisco. If his plan was to get out of the country, my plan to detain him must not fail!

We followed the hand trucks ashore and started up a steep path bordered by bushes whose outlines I saw dimly as the moon began to break through the fog.

"You lead and I'll follow," I told Bill.

He agreed, and I didn't see how I could be in any great danger as long as I could keep my eyes on him. I kept the revolver pressed tightly under my coat. I didn't want to withdraw it yet, for fear he might suddenly turn around. I wanted to get him as far from the boat as possible before I stuck it into his ribs.

We walked a couple of hundred yards. The farmhouse was at considerable distance, apparently. I saw no lights. I grew uneasy. We reached a road, but there was no sign of Belzer or an automobile. If Bill was deliberately leading me to a deserted spot . . .

Bill stopped. "That's funny," he remarked. "I hear someone ahead of us, but the house is off to our right."

I listened. A sound like the rumbling of an automobile engine came out of the fog close at hand, then stopped, as though it had been shut off.

If your birthday is today, your prospects for the next year are indifferent. The best advice which can be offered you and which you will be wise to follow, is to take plenty of rest, consolidate your financial position, and refrain from any extravagances. The child born on this date will not be easy to bring up, for he or she will be rather self-centered, difficult to understand and hard to please. Such a one will, however, be intuitive and would succeed as a detective.

Goeller-Steele Vows Exchanged in Rectory

Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman Officiates At Wedding

Miss Evelyn Steele of Circleville, daughter of Mrs. Jennie Lee Steele of Columbus Pike, and Mr. Bernard Goeller of this city were married Saturday at a quiet ceremony in the rectory of St. Joseph's Church. Mr. Goeller is the son of Mrs. William A. Goeller of South Court Street and the late Mr. Goeller. The Rev. Fr. J. J. Herman read the single ring service at 2 p. m. in the presence of Mrs. Forrest Short, Dr. Joseph Goeller and Mr. Charles Goeller, sister and brothers of the bridegroom.

The new Mrs. Goeller chose for her wedding an all black outfit, lightened with a shoulder corsage of sweet peas. She plans to continue her work at the Kippy Kit factory where she has been employed for several years.

Mr. Goeller, who is an employee of the Winorr Canning company, and his bride will reside in Circleville.

Surprise Party

Miss Kathryn Temple of Pickaway Township entertained at an evening party Saturday, the affair honoring Raymond Arledge of Clinton Street who was celebrating his birthday anniversary. The party, which was arranged as a surprise for Mr. Arledge, was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Schneider, Lancaster Pike.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perkins of Zanesville; Wendell McPherson of Clarkburg; the Misses Mary and Betty Arledge, Dorothy Crego, Dorothy Temple, Max Stout, Vincent Reid, Harlo Arledge and Jack Lane of the Circleville community.

A delightful lunch was served at the conclusion of the evening passed in playing cards.

A couple of days ago we told you about a sizeable building under construction on Cromley Street, West Side, with the frame work almost completed. We were reliably told Saturday that it must be moved because of being to close to high tension electric wires. This means considerable work and along with much expense.

Another one of our reliable and trustworthy old print shop helpers in the person of Attorney William Lane of New York City, has been here for the last several days visiting with relatives and friends. This Mr. Lane during vacation periods in his college days, had employment on the ships that travel the oceans of the world and besides crossing the Atlantic a couple dozen times, 25 to be exact, he had landed in nearly all the ports of the world. And while doing all this, became familiar with every part of the ship and knew its operation and all its working parts. And this very knowledge gained then is mostly what he gets a salary for now. He is a part of a New York City law firm representing a maritime insurance company. In case of damage to any of these insured ships or cargoes, Mr. Lane plays the part of adjuster and this takes him over wide territory. He left here for up in Canada somewhere on such mission. Beginning with Tuesday, the several (maybe "many" would be the better term) candidates, including Sundays, will have just 21 days to go before the May 14 primary. And including the babies, there are about twenty-seven thousand people to be seen, so "in high gear" is right, for them.

Among the many candidates visiting the village and passing out cards the last week, was our Scioto Township neighbor, William J. Green and besides running for the nomination for the Republican county commissioner, does some farming in his own right and name. Says he has 123 acres of growing wheat and his corn field this year will contain around 200 acres. And when the state fair comes on in August, he has the job of supplying the feed for all the livestock there. He is now engaged in rebuilding his farm home which burned sometime ago. The new structure is to be an eight-room modern building.

"Advertising Helps Turnover and Keeps Prices Down . . ."

"When I say advertising moves my goods faster, I mean the advertising done by the manufacturers of those goods. Nationally advertised products are in demand, and they're in demand because, generally, their quality is uniformly better and more reliable than products that are not so advertised. In addition, for goods of comparable quality, I think nationally advertised goods are priced as low or lower than others . . . My business depends upon turnover. My earnings, and profit if any, do not come from making a large profit margin on each item, but from selling goods fast, even if the profit margin is relatively low. If I turn my stock over twenty times a year at a low profit each time, I am better off than I would be if I turned it over only ten times a year at a higher profit . . . If manufacturers did not advertise their goods so well, then I would have to advertise more, because people do not like to buy things of uncertain quality—and I would probably have to get more for what I sell. As it is, my advertising only consists of listing the names of products and the prices . . . My costs of business are relatively lower. I can sell for less, and make more money by handling advertised goods."

RADIO BRIEFS

Tenor Lanny Ross and Crooner Rudy Vallee are the two singers Billy Rose wants for his World's Fair Aquacade this year. The mighty midget wants Lanny for the first 12 weeks and Vallee for the second 12 of the season. Negotiations are under way this week in New York.

Uncle Dave Macon, banjoist on the Grand Ole Opry programs, will be absent from the Saturday program for four weeks to fill a personal appearance engagement.

A film company is reported interested in buying film rights to the Court of Missing Heirs dramatizations.

Joan Winters will be written out of the "Girl Alone" script for one week starting Monday to vacation with her mother in Dayton, Ohio.

Edwin C. Hill, radio commentator and news columnist, will be featured speaker next Monday, April 22, at the Holy Communion Breakfast of the New York City Fire Department.

Alice Frost, star of the Big Sister program, is back from Minneapolis where she visited her mother for a few days.

"First Night" star, Les Tremayne has set his folks up in the restaurant business in Chicago. Both his mother and dad were famous on the English stage before coming to this country.

The Scandinavian blitzkrieg holds a personal worry for Frank Dane of Arnold Grimm's Daughter. His father lives in Copenhagen and Frank has been unable to locate his whereabouts.

"Red" Ingle, comedian on "Beat the Band," is writing a book on leather tooling. Ingle is one of the foremost exponents of leather work in the country and his book is the first written on the subject.

Caroline Ellis, author star of "Caroline's Golden Store" will visit her Kansas farm this week for the first time since it was remodeled into a dairy farm.

PHILIP MERIVALE IN CAVALCADE

Phillip Merivale, eminent actor, will appear in the Cavalcade of America air drama about the Confederacy's greatest general, Robert E. Lee, to be broadcast from Richmond, Va., Tuesday evening. The broadcast will be presented before an audience of almost 5,000 persons in the huge Shrine Mosque Auditorium and heard nationally over the entire NBC Blue network and selected Red network stations.

In 1934, Merivale played the role of George Washington in the Broadway production of "Valley Forge". Last season, he appeared opposite Helen Hayes in "Ladies and Gentlemen". He is now in Hollywood and will fly to Richmond for the Lee broadcast.

Famous for his Shakespearean roles both in this country and in England, where he played with Sir Herbert Tree's company, in 1935 Merivale produced "Othello" and "Macbeth" in conjunction with Gladys Cooper and appeared in the title roles. Early in his stage career, he appeared with Mrs. Patrick Campbell in "Pygmalion", playing Professor Henry Higgins for her Eliza Doolittle. In the past decade, Philip Merivale has played in such successes as "The Road to Rome", as Hannibal; in "Death Take A Holiday", as Prince Serki, the title role of Death; in "Mary of Scotland", in which he was Bothwell to Helen Hayes' Mary, and in "Call It A Day" with Gladys Cooper.

A couple of days ago we told you about a sizeable building under construction on Cromley Street, West Side, with the frame work almost completed. We were reliably told Saturday that it must be moved because of being too close to high tension electric wires. This means considerable work and along with much expense.

friends. This Mr. Lane during vacation periods in his college days, had employment on the ships that travel the oceans of the world and besides crossing the Atlantic a couple dozen times, 25 to be exact, he had landed in nearly all the ports of the world. And while doing all this, became familiar with every part of the ship and knew its operation and all its working parts. And this very knowledge gained then is mostly what he gets a salary for now. He is a part of a New York City law firm representing a maritime insurance company. In case of damage to any of these insured ships or cargoes, Mr. Lane plays the part of adjuster and this takes him over wide territory. He left here for up in Canada somewhere on such mission. He is a product of Ashville Hi and O.S.U. law school.

Ashville—Beginning with Tuesday, the several (maybe "many") would be the better term) candidates, including Sundays, will have just 21 days to go before the May 14 primary. And including the babies, there are about twenty-seven thousand people to be seen, so "in high gear" is right, for them.

Ashville—Among the many candidates visiting the village and passing out cards the last week, was our Scioto Township neighbor, William J. Green and besides running for the nomination for the Republican county commissioner's office, does some farming in his own right and name. Says he has 125 acres of growing wheat and his corn field this year will contain around 200 acres. And when the state fair comes on in August, he has the job of supplying the feed for all the livestock there. He is now engaged in rebuilding his farm home which burned sometime ago. The new structure is to be an eight-room modern building.

All-American Olympics May Be Staged July 4th

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, April 22—A streamlined all star All-American Olympics probably will be held at the Olympic Stadium in Los Angeles July 4, International News Service learned today.

These games will be in the nature of a consolation prize for the athletes who were disappointed when Finland was forced to cancel the games scheduled for Helsinki. Uniforms and medals will be distrib-

MILLERS KNOCK OFF INDIANS IN LENGTHY JOUST

COLUMBUS, April 22 — The Minneapolis Millers, who surged out of the American Association cellar with a 16-inning, 3 to 0 victory over the Indianapolis Indians yesterday, served notice today they will have plenty to say about the ultimate outcome of the pennant chase if fighting spirit and staying power means anything.

After 15 innings of scoreless, near-perfect ball, the Millers bunched four hits in the 16th to shove over three runs. Indianapolis could get only four hits from the slants of Milt Haefer, who retired for a pinch hitter in the 12th, and Harry Smythe, who held the Indians scoreless for the five innings he toiled.

The Millers garnered a total of 14 hits, and although they had men on base in all but four innings, couldn't cross the plate until the fateful 16th.

A rookie hurler, Charlie Wens-loff, held the Columbus Red Birds to two hits as Kansas City went on to an easy 9 to 4 victory. His wildness and a couple of errors robbed him of a shut-out.

The Toledo Mudhens shoved a run across in the eighth to tie the game with Milwaukee Brewers, and another in the ninth to win, 3 to 2.

Art Herring's six-hit performance for the Louisville Colonels enabled his teammates to take St.
Paul into camp, 6 to 1.

THREE CITIES SEEKING PRO GRID LOOP PLACES

CINCINNATI, April 22—George J. Heitzler today had been re-elected president of the American Professional Football League and James C. Hogan had been re-named secretary.

At a meeting Sunday, the league deferred until June 2, action on several applications for franchises.
League officials considered applications from Ashland, Ky., and Kansas City. One from Miami, Fla., was rejected because of the distance.

The Columbus Bullies, 1939 champs, traded Guard Regis Monahan to the Milwaukee Club for three players not yet named.

RACE HORSE KILLED

COLUMBUS, April 22—Jimmie
T., a race horse owned by H. H.
Fausett, Texas, was burned to death Saturday when fire destroyed a private barn near Beulah Park in Grove City. A three-year-old filly, Guess What, was burned seriously.

While Lyons was turning back the Browns, Bobby Feller, 21-year-old Cleveland speedballer, who started baseball enthusiasts with his no-run, no-hit feat on opening day, was being whacked all over the Cleveland ball park by Detroit.
Feller was hustled to the showers in the third inning after the Tigers nicked him for six runs on as many hits. The final score was

All-American Olympics May Be Staged July 4th

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, April 22—A streamlined all star All-American Olympics probably will be held at the Olympic Stadium in Los Angeles July 4, International News Service learned today.

These games will be in the nature of a consolation prize for the athletes who were disappointed when Finland was forced to cancel the games scheduled for Helsinki. Uniforms and medals will be distributed and a team selected just as if the games were to be held in Finland.

MILLERS KNOCK OFF INDIANS IN LENGTHY JOUST

COLUMBUS, April 22 — The Minneapolis Millers, who surged out of the American Association cellar with a 16-inning, 3 to 0 victory over the Indianapolis Indians yesterday, served notice today they will have plenty to say about the ultimate outcome of the pennant chase as fighting spirit and staying power means anything.

After 15 innings of scoreless, near-perfect ball, the Millers bunched four hits in the 16th to shove over three runs. Indianapolis could get only four hits from the slants of Milt Haefner, who retired for a pinch hitter in the 12th, and Harry Smythe, who held the Indians scoreless for the five innings he toiled.

The Millers garnered a total of 14 hits, and although they had men on base in all but four innings, couldn't cross the plate until the fateful 16th.

A rookie hurler, Charlie Wensloff, held the Columbus Red Birds to two hits as Kansas City went on to an easy 9 to 4 victory. His wildness and a couple of errors robbed him of a shut-out.

The Toledo Mudhens shoved a run across in the eighth to tie the game with Milwaukee Brewers, and another in the ninth to win, 3 to 2.

Art Herrington's six-hit performance for the Louisville Colonels enabled his teammates to take St. Paul into camp, 6 to 1.

LYONS WINS HIS INITIAL START; FELLER BUMPED

NEW YORK, April 22 — Ball players—come and ball players go—but to Major League fans today it looked as though old Ted Lyons, 39-year-old Chicago White Sox pitcher, was scheduled to go on forever.

Yesterday the veteran knuckleballer began his 18th season as a major leaguer by allowing the St. Louis Browns but seven safeties while his mates collected twelve from a trio of hurlers to give the Pale Hose a 6 to 2 victory. This was Lyons' 222d win since he first joined the Sox in 1923.

Only three other big league pitchers, besides the aging right-hander, can boast of 200 or more wins. They are Charley Ruffing of the Yanks; Lefty Grove of the Red Sox, and Carl Hubbell of the Giants.

While Lyons was turning back the Browns, Bobby Feller, 21-year-old Cleveland speedballer, who startled baseball enthusiasts with his no-run, no-hit feat on opening day, was being whacked all over the Cleveland ball park by Detroit. Feller was hustled to the showers in the third inning after the Tigers nipped him for six runs on as many hits. The final score was 12 to 2, with Lynn (Schoolboy) Rowe chalking up his first win for 1940.

GOOD WEATHER TO BRING TEST FOR FAST COLTS

Bimelech Gets Workout In Preparation For May 4 Event

By Clyde L. Reece

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 22 — It's beat Bimelech . . . if you can. That, briefly, was the Kentucky Derby picture today as trainers welcomed belated sunshine and clear weather at Churchill Downs and Keeneland, and studied the rise and fall of derby candidates from the Blue Grass to Jamaica and Havre de Grace.

Though the fans talked apently, non-talkative William Hurley, trainer of "Big Bim," outstanding favorite for the big chase on May 4, paid little attention to the losses of Felenon and Andy K. in the East Saturday. Instead, he took advantage of clearing weather, and sent Bimelech and his stable mate, Bashful Duck, through the stiffest workout of the 1940 season.

Watched by the 80-year-old Col. E. R. Bradley, the pair went a mile and an eighth at the Idle Hour farm. No figures were given for the workouts but it was evident they were "blown" for the first time, and were readied for the $5,000 Blue Grass stakes at Keeneland Thursday.

Go To Keeneland

The Bradley team will be vanned to Keeneland Wednesday for an initial introduction to the electrical starting gate, and will be shipped to the Downs later in the week.

Roman, owned by Joseph V. Widener, who saw his favorite Brevity get off to a bad start behind the victorious Bold Venture in 1936, rushed to the front as a derby contender Saturday when he easily defeated a field of derby subscribers at Keeneland. It was only a six furlong affair but there were gobs of mud and he was still able to lope to victory.

Mud and a victory also placed Pictor, a hitherto unnoticed applicant, in the limelight. The relative of Challeon, who ran second to Johnstown in last year's derby, pulled in ahead of them all in the Chesapeake Stakes at Havre De Grace.

With him into the favorite circle walked Slight Command, from the Sonny Whitney stables which until Saturday had given the nod to Carrier Pigeon. He was able to take but second place in a Jamaica race, but in front only was Parasang, non-derby eligible, and non-entrance seem not to count.

Andy K., who likes to bear out, and Felenon, top-notch from the Woodward Stables, which produced Gallant Fox, Omaha and Johnstown, Derby winners, failed to earn their salt Saturday after winning their 1940 debuts earlier in the week.

While the forecasters babbled their beliefs, a few of the Downs registrants braved a track soggy with a six-day beating of rain for overdue workouts. Among them was Mrs. Ethel B. Mars' "Gallahadion" who became the season's first horse to step the derby distance of a mile and a quarter. The big colt turned in 2:02.3.

If there is any way to narrow the field of 126 hopefuls for the $75,000 added without cutting out the "dark horses" who for the last few years have made a creditable showing, the derby field at this sitting should read: Bimelech, Roman and Pictor. But, not to be forgotten, is the strategy that some races count, but the Derby counts most.

BANDIT CAPTURED BY SHERIFF AFTER SERVICE STATION ROBBERY

COLUMBUS MAN MAY BE LINKED WITH SHOOTING

Circleville Police, Deputies Join In Search After Saturday Crime

DONALD W. HUNTER HELD

Possemen Ignore Mud, Water To Follow Fugitive; Car Wrecked In Road

After a 26-mile chase in which Circleville police, the sheriff, deputies and State Highway patrolmen participated, Sheriff Charles Radcliff captured a robber who, armed with a .380 calibre automatic pistol, had held up Harold Stout's service station, 1023 South Court Street, at 6 p. m. Saturday. The capture came about two hours after the robbery.

The robber gave his name as Donald Wayne Hunter, 23, 1006 McKinley Avenue, Columbus. He denied that he had robbed the Stout service station, but admitted he had served three years in the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield for armed robbery. He said he was later released from Mansfield for hearing in a robbery case in Washington, Pennsylvania, where he was put on parole after he had pleaded guilty.

After his capture Saturday evening, Chillicothe police came and identified him as the man who, on April 17, had robbed a Sun Oil Company service station in Chillicothe.

Two detectives from the Detective Bureau in Columbus arrived in Circleville Sunday and said Hunter may be the same robber who shot and seriously wounded a service station attendant on McKinley Avenue in Columbus some time ago. Sheriff Radcliff turned over Hunter's gun to the Columbus Detective Bureau, which will send it to Cleveland for identification.

It is believed Hunter's capture may clear up other hold-up cases in Columbus.

Hunter Identified

In the sheriff's office Saturday evening, Harold Stout and his attendant, Lyman England, both identified Hunter as the man who had robbed them of nearly $30. Stout said that Hunter drove up to the station and ordered two gallons of gas, and then went inside. A woman customer drove up, and after Stout had filled her car with gasoline, he went back into the station, where Hunter, armed with an automatic pistol, ordered him to hand over all the money he had, and then pushed him and England into a back room.

Stout said that as soon as he heard Hunter's car drive away, he rushed out and called the Circleville police station and the sheriff's office, which immediately notified the State Highway Patrol.

Watching for Hunter's car as they drove south on Court Street, Patrolmen Carl Radcliff, Charles Mumaw and George Green met a car which answered the description of the car Hunter was driving, near the postoffice coming north. Hunter, seeing the patrolmen, turned east on Franklin Street, heading out Route 22 through Amanda and turning down Route 159 through Oakland, with the patrolmen following close behind, just out of pistol range. "With a high power rifle we could have gotten him easily," Patrolman Mumaw said later. As the three patrolmen approached a hill near Tarlton, they lost sight of Hunter and continued on Route 159, while Hunter went down the Valley road. About three-quarters of a mile down the road, Hunter's car struck a steel drain pipe along the side of the road, wrecking his car. He continued on foot across the fields.

Trail Found Again

Meanwhile the patrolmen had discovered they were on the wrong trail and returned to Circleville, where they heard the State Highway Patrol radio report a car, which answered the description of the one Hunter was driving, wrecked two miles east of Tarlton. They hurried back to Tarlton and started on foot across a field near the scene of the accident where a housewife had told them she had seen a stranger. Police Chief William McCrady and Fire Chief Talmer Wise were also in the chase.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, with Chief Deputy Earl Weaver and Ralph Leist, drove through Tarlton and started out Moccasin road. At a field where Hunter was reported seen, Weaver and Leist left the car and started out on foot, the sheriff driving on alone.

As the sheriff drove along Moccasin Road he saw Hunter, who, pressed hard by Patrolmen Mumaw, Green and Radcliff, had crossed the field and was walking along the road. The sheriff drove up beside him, rolled down the window and pointed a revolver in his face. Hunter put up his hands.

Having no handcuffs with him, the sheriff marched Hunter down the road to the farmhouse of George Hedges, whom he asked to call to Tarlton for help. While he was waiting for help to arrive, three men from Tarlton, Jack Binkley, Marvin Hartman and Earl Crosby, came along and offered help. Binkley sat in the back seat of the sheriff's car, covering Hunter with the sheriff's gun as they drove back to Circleville.

Forehead, Hand Cut

In the sheriff's office, when asked how he was captured, Hunter said, pointing at the sheriff, "This guy sticks a gun in my face and I says 'Okeh, you're the boss.'" His forehead and his left hand were bleeding. He said he had fallen and hurt himself, but it was believed that he was injured when he wrecked his car on Valley road. In the wrecked car, a dark green 1935 Chevrolet bearing the license F778, reported stolen from a Columbus parking lot, was found Hunter's pistol. Some .380 cartridges and $22.74 in his pockets.

Hunter said he had picked up a friend on Main Street in Columbus and had gone to the Dublin Night club to play slot machines. Then he and his friend had driven south on Route 23, playing slot machines at a few places along the way. He did not say who or where his friend was.

He is being held in the County jail awaiting further developments.

ISALY TRUCK WRECKED IN RINGGOLD ACCIDENT

An Isaly ice cream truck, driven by Robert Drago, 20, of Columbus, was demolished when it ran off Ringgold Pike three miles from Circleville at 11:30 a. m. Sunday.

The truck was going from Columbus to Circleville with a $50 order of ice cream for Isaly's Dairies, 111 West Main Street. Drago received minor cuts and bruises. He was brought into Circleville by John E. Walters, Circleville Township. After he had been treated by Dr. E. L. Montgomery, he was returned to Columbus by an Isaly pick-up truck.

The truck was taken to Stout's garage, East Main Street.

MAGAZINE SUBSCRIPTIONS PRESENTED TO LIBRARY

Gift subscriptions for several periodical publications have been made to the Circleville Public Library through various church organizations. Included in the gift are the following magazines:

THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE by the Methodist Church.

THE CATHOLIC WORLD by the Catholic Church.

THE CHURCHMAN by the Protestant Episcopal Church.

THE RELIGIOUS TELESCOPE by the United Brethren in Christ Church.

THE UNION SIGNAL and the OHIO MESSENGER are sent to the library by the W.C.T.U.

THE PRESBYTERIAN and EVANGELICAL WEEKLY is presented by George Grand-Girard, while the SUNDAY SCHOOL TIMES, published by the Sunday School Times Co., is also received at the library.

The librarian, Daniel Pfoutz, on behalf of the Library Board and the patrons of the library expresses gratitude for these gift subscriptions. They are a source for much material often in demand and not otherwise available. Since these publications have been placed on the library shelves, they have been used daily by readers in the library.

Here's Oration That Won County Oratorical Event

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the winning oration given by Mary Anise Bush, Perry Township high school senior, at the Pickaway County Oratorical Contest held in New Holland Friday evening. The oration was written by Mrs. Leslie B. Canup, wife of the superintendent at Atlanta school, Perry Township.

As the Older Order Changes, What Shall We Salvage?

We are living in a world of change. We have only to look around us to see how many and how great are the changes which have taken place. What was done in yesteryears by human power is done today by mechanical power. In many homes today the back-breaking tasks of yesterday are one with little effort on the part of human beings. Yes, mechanical power has supplanted muscular power; brain has supplanted brawn. Yesterday, under the domestic system each home was self-sufficient; each family made everything that it needed everything that it made. Today, under the factory system, we have division of labor on an enormous scale.

In our schools we can see drastic changes. The little red, romantic school house is fast becoming a memory. In its place are large well-equipped consolidated structures. Yesterday, we were taught reading, writing and arithmetic to the tune of a hickory stick; today, the curriculum has been widened to include vocational, commercial, physical, cultural, scientific, and artistic subjects. The school is endeavoring to train the body and soul as well as the mind. It is trying to shoulder the responsibilities for training children, which many homes are too busy to assume in this materialistic age of the radio, automobile, theatre, and all the other attractions that occupy the time and talents of parents.

In communication and transportation, changes have been marvelous. Telegraph, telephone, wireless, radio, television, bring all parts of the world together. The horse and buggy days have given way to automobiles, airplanes, steamers, and trains.

Truly we have witnessed great change. What will tomorrow bring?

The question naturally arises, what of the past is good and what shall we salvage from the past as a precious heritage to carry into the future as the old order is being swirled so rapidly into oblivion?

In the first place we can salvage a loving, kindly, happy spirit. "So many gods, so many creeds, so many roads that lead and wind But all the help this old world needs Is just the art of being kind."

Secondly, let us salvage the old fashioned principle of honesty. Lowell says, "In vain we call old notions fudge. And bend our conscience to our dealings; The commandments will not budge. And stealing will continue stealing."

A time like this certainly demands honest men, whom J. G. Holland describes as those "Whom the lust of office does not kill and whom the spoils of office cannot buy."

In the third place, let us salvage the ability to think for ourselves. To be able to think intelligently, we should have training that comes not only from high school and college text books, but also from travel, reading, observation, and an interest in current affairs. In such an important history-making and changing era, all should keep themselves informed, in order to have the basic facts without which it is impossible to think logically. In the age when so much is being done for us, we are apt to let others do our thinking. So often we jump at conclusions instead of evaluating evidence. We are guided by our passions, prejudices, and emotions entirely too often. It took the French 80 years to establish a republic; the people of the United States accomplished this in a few months. Why this difference in time? The fact that the French had no experience in self-government was a detriment to them, but their most serious detriment was their emotional make-up. They were guided by their passions and prejudices so completely that calm cool reasoning had no chance to assert itself. After having attained liberty, equality, and fraternity, they were so influenced by the propaganda of Louis Napoleon, that they voluntarily voted in an emperor. Long and bloody was their struggle for a republic. So different is the story of our free government. The framers of our Constitution put their minds to the task and emerged after a few months with a wonderful document. But these men could not have possessed such powers to think had they not first studied other Constitutions which grew out of long political experiences of other nations. Can we make the statement, then, that in our free country all men shall ascertain the truth by using their God-given minds? No, we cannot. It can happen here. We must be ever vigilant of our God-given liberties.

It is not upon the president and office holders alone where rest the responsibilities of preserving our liberties to the latest generations.

Two thousand years ago there was a crowd—a mob if you please—who cried, "Crucify Him". That crowd could find no fault with this man and yet they crucified him. He, who was able to save them. Why? They were not thinking, they were governed by their emotions.

If our democracy is to endure, if we are kept from the path of fascism, socialism, communism, and dictatorship, it will be due largely to the fact that we have educated thinking citizens, intelligent men and women who are willing to be in the right even though the majority is against them.

But then majority and minority groups must cooperate. Our president was right when he said, "Together we must advance or together we shall fall". Nations as well as people must salvage this cooperative spirit.

We might go on enumerating those things which were good yesterday, to day and forever, but if we as individuals, and as a whole unified people, are able to trample petty, insignificant, personal, selfish passions and prejudices under foot and see the Bigger Plan for Humanity which has been laid down by the world's Savior, if we shall salvage from the past the ideals of honesty, thrift, and industriousness, if we use and develop our native talents and intelligence, if our actions are the dictates of our minds as well as our emotions, if the humanitarian spirit prevailed, we can go through any period of change and emerge triumphant both as individuals and as a nation, with strength of character which shall usher in, "Peace on Earth, Good Will among Men,"—a real Democracy.

BANDIT CAPTURED BY SHERIFF AFTER SERVICE STATION ROBBERY

COLUMBUS MAN MAY BE LINKED WITH SHOOTING

Circleville Police, Deputies Join In Search After Saturday Crime

DONALD W. HUNTER HELD

Possemen Ignore Mud, Water To Follow Fugitive; Car Wrecked In Road

After a 26-mile chase in which Circleville police, the sheriff, deputies and State Highway patrolmen participated, Sheriff Charles Radcliff captured a robber who, armed with a .380 calibre automatic pistol, had held up Harold Stout's service station, 1023 South Court Street, at 6 p. m. Saturday. The capture came about two hours after the robbery.

The robber gave his name as Donald Wayne Hunter, 23, 1006 McKinley Avenue, Columbus. He denied that he had robbed the Stout service station, but admitted he had served three years in the Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield for armed robbery. He said he was later released from Mansfield for hearing in a robbery case in Washington, Pennsylvania, where he was put on parole after he had pleaded guilty.

After his capture Saturday evening, Chillicothe police came here and identified him as the man who, on April 17, had robbed a Sun Oil Company service station in Chillicothe.

Two detectives from the Detective Bureau in Columbus arrived in Circleville Sunday and said Hunter may be the same robber who shot and seriously wounded a service station attendant on McKinley Avenue in Columbus some time ago. Sheriff Radcliff turned over Hunter's gun to the Columbus Detective Bureau, which will send it to Cleveland for identification.

It is believed Hunter's capture may clear up other hold-up cases in Columbus.

Hunter Identified

In the sheriff's office Saturday evening, Harold Stout and his attendant, Lyman England, both identified Hunter as the man who had robbed them of nearly $30. Stout said that Hunter drove up to the station and ordered two gallons of gas, and then went inside. A woman customer drove up, and after Stout had filled her car with gasoline, he went back into the station, where Hunter, armed with an automatic pistol, ordered him to hand over all the money he had, and then pushed him and England into a back room.

Stout said that as soon as he heard Hunter's car drive away, he rushed out and called the Circleville police station and the sheriff's office, which immediately notified the State Highway Patrol.

Watching for Hunter's car as they drove south on Court Street, Patrolmen Carl Radcliff, Charles Mumaw and George Green met a car which answered the description of the car Hunter was driving, near the postoffice coming north. Hunter, seeing the patrolmen, turned east on Franklin Street, heading out Route 22 through Amanda and turning down Route 159 through Oakland, with the patrolmen following close behind, just out of pistol range. "With a high power rifle we could have gotten him easily," Patrolman Mumaw said later. They said they were driving between 70 and 80 miles per hour.

As the three patrolmen approached a hill near Tarlton, they lost sight of Hunter and continued on Route 159, while Hunter went down the Valley road. About three-quarters of a mile down the road, Hunter's car struck a steel drain pipe along the side of the road, wrecking his car. He continued on foot across the fields.

Trail Found Again

Meanwhile the patrolmen had discovered they were on the wrong trail and returned to Circleville, where they heard the State Highway Patrol radio report a car, which answered the description of the one Hunter was driving, wrecked two miles east of Tarlton. They hurried back to Tarlton and started on foot across a field near the scene of the accident where a housewife had told them she had seen a stranger. Police Chief William McCrady and Fire Chief Talmer Wise were also in the chase.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff, with Chief Deputy Earl Weaver and Ralph Leist, drove through Tarlton and started out Moccasin road. At a field where Hunter was reported seen, Weaver and Leist left the car and started out on foot, the sheriff driving on alone.

As the sheriff drove along Moccasin Road he saw Hunter, who, pressed hard by Patrolmen Mumaw, Green and Radcliff, had crossed the field and was walking along the road. The sheriff drove up beside him, rolled down the window and pointed a revolver in his face. Hunter put up his hands.

Having no handcuffs with him, the sheriff marched Hunter down the road to the farmhouse of George Hedges, whom he asked to call to Tarlton for help. While he was waiting for help to arrive, three men from Tarlton, Jack Binkley, Marvin Hartranft and Earl Crosby, came along and offered help. Binkley sat in the back seat of the sheriff's car, covering Hunter with the sheriff's gun as they drove back to Circleville.

Forehead, Hand Cut

In the sheriff's office, when asked how he was captured, Hunter said, pointing at the sheriff, "This guy sticks a gun in my face and I says 'Okeh, you're the boss.'" His forehead and his left hand were bleeding. He said he had fallen and hurt himself, but it was believed that he was injured when he wrecked his car on Valley road. In the wrecked car, a dark green 1935 Chevrolet bearing the license F778, reported stolen from a Columbus parking lot, was found Hunter's pistol. Some .380 cartridges and $22.74 in his pockets.

Hunter said he had picked up a friend on Main Street in Columbus and had gone to the Dublin Night club to play slot machines. Then he and his friend had driven south on Route 23, playing slot machines at a few places along the way. He did not say who or where his friend was.

He is being held in the County jail awaiting further developments.

ISALY TRUCK WRECKED IN RINGGOLD ACCIDENT

An Isaly ice cream truck, driven by Robert Drago, 20, of Columbus, was demolished when it ran off Ringgold Pike three miles from Circleville at 11:30 a. m. Sunday.

The truck was going from Columbus to Circleville with a $50 order of ice cream for Isaly's Dairies, 111 West Main Street. Drago received minor cuts and bruises. He was brought into Circleville by John E. Walters, Circleville Township. After he had been treated by Dr. E. L. Montgomery, he was returned to Columbus by an Isaly pick-up truck.

The truck was taken to Stout's garage, East Main Street.
